THE NEW RAILROAD "KING"

Charles S. Mellen, from a snapshot made when he visited Boston a few weeks ago.

New Haven President, Whose Grip Is Tightening On the Last Independent Railroad of New England

BATTLE ON MERGER

In Jamestown Speech Roosevelt Demands: "HOLD RAILROADS LIABLE"

President Talks on Employers' Liability in Address at Big Fair.

NORFOLK, Va., June 10.—Almost as many notables and a greater military and naval demonstration than see on the opening day of the exposition, attended to-day's dedication of the Georgia building, at which President Roosevelt was the principal speaker. The building is a counterpart of the Roswell mansion where the mother of the nation's Chief Executive spent her girlhood days.

The President scored the railroads for their opposition to the enactment of a national employer's liability law, and defended "the superbly self-reliant individualism in this country" against the possible encroachments of socialism.

Uses Vigorous Language.

"I most earnestly hope that it will not be lost, that it will never be changed for a deadening socialism. The only permanently beneficial way in which to help anyone is to help him to help himself," he declared in speaking of individualism. "Nevertheless, as the conditions of life grow more complex, it is not possible to trust our welfare only to the unbridled individual initiative of each unit of our population, working as that unit will."

His references to the railroads' opposition to the liability law were couched even in more vigorous language.

"If it is proper for the federal courts to issue injunctions in behalf of the railroads, it is proper that railroads should be held to a strict liability for accidents occurring to their employes," he said.

The President's speech follows in part:

I cannot express how deeply touched I am at the action of the State of Georgia, my mother's State, the State from which I draw half the blood in my veins, in erecting as the Georgia State House at the Jamestown Exposition a replica of my grandfather's house at Roswell, Ga., the house in which my mother passed her youth and where she was married to my father.

Perhaps the very fact that I am half southern and half northern in blood, and that for many years I was brought into peculiarly close association with the life of the great West, makes it natural for me to feel with intensity the strong sense of kinship with every portion of our great common country, which should be the birthright of every true American.

Evil of Child Labor.

During the last quarter of a century this nation has made astounding strides in material progress, and in no other section has this progress been more noteworthy than in the South.

In the South, as everywhere through the land, there need be no good education given free to all children, no matter what may be their race or color.

It is a matter of congratulation that there is such a steady increase of interest in the Southern States in everything pertaining to children. This has already shown itself, and I hope will still more markedly show itself in the future, in warring against the evil of child labor in factories. The factory is a very poor place indeed for a child; and, personally, I think the factory a poor place for a woman—certainly for a married woman or an unmarried woman for more than a very few years.

The nation's most valuable asset is the children; for the children are the nation of the future. All people alive to the nation's needs should join hands to work for the moral, spiritual and physical welfare of the children in all parts of our land.

New Laws Needed.

We have inherited and developed a superbly self-reliant individualism in this country. I most earnestly hope that it will not be lost, that it will never be exchanged for a deadening socialism. The only permanently beneficial way in which to help anyone is to help him to help himself; for either private charity, or governmental action, or any form of social expression destroys the individual's power of self help, the gravest possible wrong is really done to the individual. Nevertheless, as the condition of life grow more complex, it is not possible to trust our welfare only to the unbridled individual initiative of each unit of our population working as that unit will.

We need laws for the care of our children which were not needed when this country in its infancy.

We need laws for the control of vast corporations such as were not needed when the individual forms were for smaller than at present, and when these fortunes were not combined for business use.

In the same way we need to change our attitude toward labor problems from what that attitude was in the days when the great bulk of our people lived in the country with no more complex labor relations than is implied in the connection between the farmer and the hired help.

The National Government should be a model employer. It should demand the highest quality of service from its employes and should care for them properly in return. Congress should adopt legislation providing limited but definite com-

Big Fight Opens at State House To-day to Prevent Absorption of Boston & Maine by the New Haven—Brandeis Puts in Prohibitory Bill.

The battle to keep from the grasp of the New Haven Railway the last independent line in New England—the Boston & Maine—was begun in earnest to-day before the Railroad Committee of the Legislature at the State House.

The meeting was held in the largest committee room of the big building and it was packed. Representatives of various interests, personal, business and political, were present to oppose the proposed merger of the two roads.

Lawyer Louis Brandeis, representing an association of stockholders, as well as William B. Lawrence, one of the largest individual stockholders, who was present, sprung a sensation early at the hearing by presenting a bill that makes the merging of the two roads illegal.

ABSORPTION.

The bill provides that it shall be unlawful for the New Haven to acquire any of the stock of the Boston & Maine railway or to be interested in it in any way. It makes it unlawful for officials in the one company to become officially connected with the other, and orders that the New Haven shall return to the Boston & Maine all stock before April 1 next all the stock that it has already got hold of.

A violation of this proposed law shall be the reisnor liable to a fine of from $5,000 to $50,000, or imprisonment of not more than five years, or to both fine and imprisonment. This bill would take effect June 30, this year.

"GREAT ECONOMIC PROBLEM."

In support of his bill, Mr. Brandeis said:

"In considering this question, the most important economic question that has come before the Legislature in a generation, I think the committee must be of the opinion that the first matter to be determined is the legal position of the railroads and the possibilities of legislation.

"It has been frequently stated during the past fortnight in the public press that the New Haven road has already put itself in such a position that the only question the Legislature can have to consider is how the interests of the Commonwealth and the stockholders may be protected under a merger, or consolidation, and not the question whether the New Haven road shall be permitted to control the Boston & Maine system.

"This is legally and absolutely unfounded.

"LEGISLATURE HAS POWER."

"I believe it is the gra[ve] question whether at the present ti[me] a New Haven company, in putting i[t] potential ownership of the stock [of] a Boston or Maine, has not taken a ste[p] it is contrary to our laws.

"Whether our present laws are adequate to prevent this merger, or whatever may be the existing laws, I believe it to be true that the Legislature of Massachusetts has ample constitutional power to prevent that control being exercised.

"Whether there be a general statute or not, the Legislature has power to compel them to give it up.

"Our laws have declared in explicit terms that a corporation organized under the laws of this Commonwealth shall not purchase the stock of other corporations except to the extent set forth in the general laws. Under the present laws the action of the New Haven company, in acquiring the stock, is illegal and in defiance of the well-defined policy of the Commonwealth.

CITES COURT RULING.

"The bill that I submit should take effect June 30. I think it may be of value to the committee to have me state somewhat further the legal and constitutional position upon which this bill is based.

"Judging from statements in some of the papers I assume that the community has been instructed by some persons that what the New Haven Company has done already in advance of calling the facts to the attention of the people of Massachusetts renders it impossible for this Legislature to act effectually.

"That position is in direct contradiction of law in regard to the regulation and control of interests and corporations as declared, and very recently declared, by the Supreme Court of the United States."

Senate Chairman (Dr.) Faxon of Stoughton made it plain that the Railroad Committee doesn't intend to waste any time over the matter, and that a little thing like the New Haven railroad gobbling the Boston & Maine must not interfere with the President Chapin-Speaker Cole plan to send the Legislature home with the end of the present week.

"Be Brief," Says Chairman.

"The hearing," Senator Faxon said, after cigars had been passed to the committeemen (there was at least one woman in the room) is for the purpose of considering the Governor's message of June 5. You are all, doubtless, familiar with the text of that message. Therefore it will not be necessary to have it read.

"I want to say at the beginning that we hope that everybody realizes that we are in the last days of the session and that you will be as brief as possible. The committee is willing to work overtime, and in continuous session, but we hope that everybody will be brief and to the point.

"First of all, it might be well for us to ascertain just who is present representing organized bodies of any kind. Will such representatives kindly declare themselves?"

These gentlemen responded to the call:

OPPONENTS OF DEAL.

Louis Brandeis, representing the Veterans' Association of the Lawrence Life Guard, holding 1,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock, and also representing William B. Lawrence, who was present.

Daniel J. Kiley, chairman of the Committee on Legislative Matters of the Democratic State Committee, "authorized to appear by vote of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee."

Jerome Jones, for the Boston Merchants' Association.

Greenville S. MacFarland, representing the Independence League of Massachusetts.

E. W. Chapin, for the Holyoke & Westfield railroad.

On account of the crowd the committee had already left its usual chamber on the fourth floor of the capitol for the biggest room on the first floor, the building being usually under the State Library. When Mr. Brandeis opened there were all of 200 present.

WHITNEY REPRESENTED.

Among them were Colonel J. H. Benton of counsel for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, "merely as an observer," he said; William H. Coolidge of counsel for the Boston & Maine Railroad; former Congressman William S. McNary of the Henry M. Whitney Democratic gubernatorial movement; J. Otis Wardwell, Benjamin Gilboy and Hon. E. J. Slattery of Framingham.

Hon. William N. Osgood, president of the Independence League of Massachusetts, was also in the audience.

STREETER CALLS EDDY SUIT ENEMIES' PLOT

PEOPLE CALLING SELVES "NEXT FRIENDS" REPUDIATED BY SCIENCE LEADER.

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., June 10.—Declaring that the suit in equity brought against Mrs. Eddy by those plaintiffs that call themselves her "next friends" is in reality brought by her most bitter personal and religious enemies, General Frank S. Streeter, Mrs. Eddy's chief counsel, argued in the Merrimac County Superior Court today that the case, as brought by these "next friends," should be dismissed.

He argued that the real parties in interest do not appear openly in the case as plaintiffs, and that equity demands that Mrs. Eddy should be protected against interlopers who call themselves her "next friends," but who have been repudiated by her.

Courtroom Crowded.

Judge Chamberlain's courtroom was crowded to the doors to-day when the arguments began.

General Streeter and Samuel J. Elder of Boston, who represents the Massachusetts defendants in the original suit, are on one side of the lawyers' angle. Lawyers John G. Kelley and Martin C. Howe, representing the "next friends," sat at the other side.

Among those present in the courtroom was Frank H. Leonard, husband of Mrs. Emily Leonard, the woman who has been charged by enemies of Mrs. Eddy with having impersonated the leader of the Christian Scientists in her daily drives about Concord.

Grounds of Motion.

The grounds of the motion argued by General Streeter to-day were:

"That the court, by its presiding justice, sitting as chancellor in equity, may immediately investigate the question raised by this motion and may consider and determine:

"2. Whether property interests have been and now are fully protected.

"3. Whether there is any occasion for having these proceedings maintained in her behalf by next friends, so called.

"4. Whether these proceedings were brought and are being maintained by said next friends for her benefit and in good faith.

"5. To determine all other questions raised by the motion so far as may be necessary for the protection of her rights.

"5. That said next friends may be discharged by the chancellor.

"6. That the chancellor may make such other orders as may be necessary or just for the protection of the petitioner and her property.

"7. That the legal and equitable rights as a citizen of New Hampshire may in all respects as far as these proceedings are concerned be established and determined without further delay.

"8. That the relations of said alleged next friends to these proceedings may be suspended by order of the chancellor until the questions hereby raised may be investigated and determined by him."

In Double Capacity.

To-day General Streeter appeared in the double capacity of counsel for the trustees and counsel for Mrs. Eddy. The motion argued to-day was a voluminous document, the substance of which was a request for a dismissal of the "next friends" and the discontinuance of the equity proceedings against Frye and the nine other defendants.

This action was asked on the ground that it was brought in bad faith, that Mrs. Eddy is competent to attend to her own affairs and that her property is well managed.

The next friends," who in their bill in equity allege that Mrs. Eddy is at the mercy of a clique of the Christian Science Church and that her property is being diverted by such clique to its own ends, are her son, George W. Glover of Lead, S. D.; his daughter, Mary Baker Glover; Mrs. Eddy's adopted son, Dr. Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt.; her cousin, George W. Baker of Bangor, Me., and her nephew, Fred W. Baker of Epsom, N. H.

It was anticipated to-day that in the event of Judge Chamberlin's denying the motion of General Streeter, the court would lay down a course of procedure to be followed in the suit, probably beginning with the appointment of a master to determine the question of Mrs. Eddy's competency.

HAYWOOD FACES NEW PERIL IN LIFE FIGHT

STATE FORCES "STEVE" ADAMS, ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE OF ORCHARD, TO TESTIFY.

BOISE, Ida., June 10.—With a threat of death hanging like Damocles' sword over his head, Steve Adams, the man Harry Orchard, the confessed assassin of former Governor Steunenberg, has named as his companion in the blotting out of many lives in the miners' troubles in Idaho and Colorado, to being brought to Boise to-day by the prosecution in a dramatic attempt to wind the net about William D. Haywood.

Yet the State finds itself to-day in a peculiar predicament. Adams's disposition is antagonistic to the prosecution. In his admissions of a year ago he corroborated in all of its essential details Orchard's accounts of the murders the two men committed, and he also confirmed the descriptions of Orchard of the two interviews with the officers of the Western Federation of Miners, when money is alleged to have been paid to the confessed assassins.

Later, when Adams heard of Orchard's full confession implicating him, he partly repudiated his own story of the slaying of many miners at the independence railroad station, the assassination of Lyte Gregory and the attempts upon the lives of Governor Peabody and Judges Goddard and Gabbert of Colorado.

May Repudiate Confession.

Now it is a question whether Adams will renounce his confession again and accept the alternative of shipment to Colorado or take the witness stand in support of Orchard's testimony. The attorneys for Haywood are confident that Adams will not substantiate Orchard.

In any event he will be pinned on the witness stand by the prosecution, and if he refuses to incriminate himself the State will contend for the prosecution of the confession upon some basis of more or less legality, according to Western practice. Similar intentions have been formed with respect to Adams's wife, who has been here for a month under a summons from the State, but a daily companion of the wives of the three men confined beneath the courtroom.

Adams a Puzzle.

When the trial of W. D. Haywood was resumed to-day Lawyer Richardson continued the cross-examination of Orchard. Interest was divided to-day between Orchard and Steve Adams, who was declared by Orchard to have been his confederate in a number of dynamite plots and assassinations, and who is on his way here from the jail at Wallace, Idaho, under

JAPANESE IN WAR PLOT TO DEMAND U. S. APOLOGY

International Conspiracy to Overthrow Tokio Ministry Said to Be on Foot.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—A political plot bearing the earmarks of an international conspiracy to force the United States into war with Japan, was revealed today when disquieting reports reached the State and War Departments that the Japanese of the Pacific Coast and the "Progressives," a political party of Japan, were in league to overthrow the present Japanese ministry and plunge the island empire into conflict with this country.

That Washington is alarmed over the situation today is shown by the dispatches arriving from Tokio. One quotes Viscount Tani, leader of the opposition in the Japanese House of Peers, in which he declares:

"The persecution of the Japanese in San Francisco is a wicked act. Should diplomacy fail to bring about a satisfactory solution the only way open to us is an appeal to arms. Our mind is firmly made up. It is certain that America will yield, for its people are radically commercial in their sentiment."

Seeks Aoki's Recall.

Just how much Viscount Tani represents public sentiment in Japan remains to be shown.

The preliminary steps in the war plot, it is said, will be to induce the Tokio government to recall Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador to the United States, and to demand an apology, and perhaps an indemnity, from the government for the alleged acts of violence against Japanese subjects in San Francisco.

With this end in view Representatives of the faction hostile to the Saionji ministry have been in Washington to consult with the Japanese ambassador and the State Department officials regarding the objectionable clause in the immigration bill, the California school question and the recent attack on Japanese in San Francisco.

May Provoke Riots.

The report which they have sent to Tokio, it is alleged, will form the basis of a systematic campaign to bring about anti-American demonstrations in Japan, and to force Foreign Minister Hayashi, if possible, to demand indemnity and an apology on account of the Japanese disturbances in San Francisco.

The facts became known today for the first time when it was learned that T. Takahashi, representative of the Seattle Japanese Society, O. Noda, representative of the San Francisco Japanese Society, and K. Kawasima, staff representative of the Yorozu, a daily newspaper of Tokio, came to Washington on April 27 and remained until May 17, during which time they were negotiating with the Japanese ambassador looking to the annulment of the Japanese immigration limitation law.

Jap Papers Calm.

In regard to the recent attack on a Japanese bath house and a restaurant in San Francisco, the Jiji advised its readers not to believe that the unfriendly sentiments of San Francisco people are shared by the whole American nation. The Nichi points out the danger to friendly relations between Japan and the United States which might result from such misapprehension. It also expresses full confidence that the Washington government will be able to settle the matter satisfactorily.

The Japanese restaurant keepers, small shopkeepers and artisans, in fact, all Japanese except farmers and plantations in Hawaii are getting up a petition to President Roosevelt asking him to change the order he made prohibiting the immigration of Japanese from Hawaii to the mainland of the United States.

SHE'S AT IT AGAIN.

SOUTH BOSTON PASTORS RESENT EDITORIAL SLUR

Clergymen Declare the District Most Religious and Quiet Section of City.

Clergymen of all denominations, who are residents of South Boston, denounced from the pulpits yesterday an editorial in a Boston newspaper for the attacks it has made on the people of the peninsula district since the beginning of the teamsters' strike.

Incidentally the ministers referred to some mornsig's papers which in their news columns have magnified the disturbances which have taken place in South Boston between the strikers and strike-breakers.

An editorial in a Boston evening paper recently charged South Boston people with being immoral and having lack of respectability.

From his pulpit in the Phillips Congregational Church, South Boston, the Rev. Frederick B. Richards said:

"Ignorance," Says Rev. Richards.

"In the name of fairness, I desire to protest against the unjust and indiscriminating statements concerning the moral condition of South Boston which have appeared in some papers; as, for instance, in the editorial of the Boston Transcript of Tuesday, June 4.

"No respectable citizen of South Boston would for a moment condone or excuse the disgraceful actions of individuals referred to, but making these acts symptomatic of the moral condition of our peninsula is evidence only of ignorance and mistaken judgment."

"Insult" Declares Priest.

Rev. George J. Patterson, pastor of St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Church, spoke at several of the masses yesterday on "the unjust and ignorant criticism of South Boston and its people. He said:

"Certain of the daily papers apparently take delight in maligning South Boston and its people. The latest reference, how ever, an editorial in a paper last week, is nothing short of calumny and insult and should not go unanswered. Because a community of nearly 90,000 people has more or less noise, because its young people are full of life and spirit, and, no doubt, at times, go beyond the bounds of decorum, that is no reason why we should be charged with being morally diseased.

"The students of Harvard College and Technology can go to the theatre or march through the streets, assault people, insult actors on the stage and even throw things at them, these actions of the aristocracy, but there is no criticism of them, only punishment for the police who strive to prevent it."

"People Sensible," Father Donnelly.

In his farewell sermon to the people of the Church of the Rosary Rev. John A. Donnelly, who has been transferred to another church in this Catholic diocese, said:

"You may go to the theatre and there see young men, the sons of culture, Harvard graduates, behave terribly, upset everything and send other people who attend the show home disgusted, and I will be told that the boys were only up to their pranks.

"But if boys have been in South Boston, men come to take the bread out of their mouths, if a few of irresponsible children recklessly and mischievously create disorder, thereby possibly throwing stones, perhaps it is proclaimed a riot and something outrageous and deserving of punishment.

"The people here are good, sensible people; they are brought up right; they are religious people, and there is no better proof of this than the occasion when the boys became wild and reckless and chased a man. A priest happened along, held up his hand and appealed to their better nature and they left them to stop, and they immediately desist."

"Hoodlumism" in Back Bay.

The Rev. Albert B. Shields of the Church of the Redeemer, in East Fourth street, said:

"In the dozen or more years I have lived in South Boston I have never witnessed as disgraceful conduct as I have seen in the Back Bay district, one of the worst example of 'hoodlumism' on the part of school boys I have ever seen was in the Back Bay district, and they were pupils of a private school.

While the Rev. James Todd of the Fourth Presbyterian Church denied that the spirit of immorality in South Boston and does not exist, he said: "There is a lack of religion on the district" declared that there is a lack of religious training in South Boston.

"That's the source of our greatest trouble here in South Boston," he said.

What Pastors Say in Reply to Slur

Here is what the pastors of South Boston churches say in answer to newspaper charges that the people of that district are immoral and lack respectability:

REV. FREDERICK B. RICHARDS—"Making these acts" (clashes between striking teamsters and strike-breakers) "symptomatic of the moral condition of our peninsula is evidence of ignorance and mistaken judgment."

REV. GEORGE J. PATTERSON—"The students of Harvard and Technology can go to the theatre or march through the streets, assault people and insult actors on the stage, but there is no criticism of them. It is be-it is because their fathers support the paper that last week said that we in South Boston are socially demoralized."

REV. JOHN A. DONNELLY—"If we go on Washington street and see a great crowd of students from Harvard or from Technology maim a few people or assault officers, they call it boyish pranks."

REV. ALBERT B. SHIELDS—"The worst example of hoodlumism on the part of boys I have seen was in the Back Bay district."

$2000 FUND TO AID TEAM DRIVERS' FIGHT

Striking teamsters in Boston have no thought of giving up their struggle. On the contrary, they are receiving funds enough to carry on the campaign for many more months.

More than $2,000 was received by Team Drivers' Union 25 at yesterday's meeting, $900 coming from the Chelsea local and another instalment of the proceeds of the recent benefit concert, $120 from N. Y., N. H. & H. Freight Handlers' Union 70, which is levying a weekly assessment on its members, and the balance was from the $1 a week assessment levied on the Union's members at work.

Thomas L. Hughes of Chicago, International treasurer, promised the full support of the International, and considerable enthusiasm was aroused when the news was confirmed that a big Charlestown forwarding contract, requiring eight teams, had been transferred from one of the struck firms to another forwarding company which employs union men. Several men on the strike list were engaged by the firm for the extra teams.

It was also announced that two firms in the dry goods district have signed up to bring their work done by union men.

Another firm is negotiating regarding a settlement so as to get a number of its cut hands back before all are snapped up by fair firms which are extending their business.

SHUMAN GIVES FLAG TO CIVIL WAR NURSES

During the memorial services in honor of the army nurses of the Civil War which were held yesterday afternoon in Faneuil Hall under the auspices of the Army Nurses' Association of Massachusetts, Rev. E. A. Horton, in behalf of A. Shuman, presented the society with a large American flag. Mrs. Fanny T. Hazen, president of the Department of the War Veterans of 1861-1865, presented Rev. Tillman Johnson, chaplain of the organization, with a case cut open with bullet-hole of Gettysburg the cut of the fight.

Notable among the veteran nurses present was Mrs. Margaret Hamilton of Wakefield, whom Mrs. Micah Dyer introduced to the audience as the nurse who had volunteered her services in Philadelphia at West Philadelphia, and who had remained there for three years nursing stricken soldiers.

The plans was draped with the flag which hung on the soldiers' free library at Washington during the war. An open secretary's desk was also draped with a flg, and on the desk and the pigeon holes was a profusion of flowers, the gift of Thomas W. Lawson.

The services were opened with prayer by Rev. E. A. Horton, which was followed by a solo by Miss Torrey. Mrs. Sarah E. Fuller, president of the Massachusetts branch of the National Woman's Relief Corps and the mother of the Massachusetts Woman's Relief Corps. After the reading of James Russell Lowell's "Commemoration Ode" Walter Quinn Gorce were addressed by Hon. Alfred S. Roe, Mrs. Dyer, Rev. Mr. Johnson and Dr. Hughes.

COURT FREES CADDY WHO KILLED FRIEND

Twelve-year-old James F. Kirrane, the Brookline Country Club caddy who accidentally killed William R. Strain, another caddy, on the club grounds during a golf game between two members on Saturday, appeared before Judge Perkins in the Brookline District Court to-day and was discharged.

Only three witnesses were heard. Arthur Atedman, chairman of the board of stewards of the Country Club; Dr. Alvah Cutts, medical examiner, and Judge Albert Paige, of the Brookline police.

It was known that young Kirrane met the dead boy last night on the links and friends. On Saturday Kirrane pulled a golf stick from a bag, swung it and struck Strain, who was standing directly behind him, behind the ear.

"I am very sorry for what happened," said Young Kirrane to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter after his release. "But I could not help it. I did not know that Strain was standing behind me when I swung the club."

MORE ARRESTS IN 'SMUGGLING' OF WOMEN HERE

Interest increased to-day in the investigation of the alleged smuggling into this country of Chinese women when the authorities in Boston declared that before night additional arrests would be made in the case.

H. Eldon Prescott, senior member of the hardware and rubber firm of Prescott & Co., Dock square, one of the Boston men already arrested in connection with the investigation, appeared his arrest for the first time to-day. He said:

Signed in Good Faith.

"I did sign some papers for a Chinese merchant whom I knew. I understand that I am charged with having known, when I signed my name, that the signature would be used by some Chinese merchant to help him bring Chinese women here. I wish to deny this. I signed in good faith, believing that my name would help the merchant who wanted to return to China.

The federal authorities charge Prescott and Robert J. Reddy of this city with aiding the Chinese, Hon Yen, who was arrested in New York last Friday, in connection with having imported Chinese women for unlawful purposes.

Another Arrest May Follow.

One other Boston business man is charged with complicity in the plot which the federal detectives say they have unearthed. This man has not yet been arrested. The authorities have not disclosed his name, but it is known that they are watching for him, and that he will be arrested as soon as he is located.

Several Chinese women are said to be living in the suburbs of Boston. The arrests of Chinese merchants to bring in the women members of their families. The federal authorities are trying to find out whether all the women who have been admitted, have really been members of the families of merchants to whom it is alleged when they were permitted to enter this country.

BOY'S MIND BLANK, DOCTORS PUZZLED

LOWELL, June 10.—Physicians are at a loss to explain the state of mind of little Willie Rondeau, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Zanon Rondeau of No. 2 Hall street, who is still unable to tell of his wanderings on Memorial Day. The lad was found the following day in the woods at Methuen with his mind a blank. He had followed the parade to the cemetery and lost his way, finally going to sleep in the woods. The boy displayed amazing signs of intelligence in his age and this fact, the doctors believe, may be responsible for his present strange mental condition. He is confined to his bed.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Tearing His Lungs Coughing

"I had a severe cough that would hurt me so that I thought I would tear my lungs all to pieces coughing.

"I finally got a bottle of Father John's Medicine and it cured me of the cough." Wm. Maxwell, 24 School St., Concord, N. H.

2-YEAR-OLD DRINKS POISON

Francis W. O'Brien, the two-year-old son of John O'Brien of Newton, drank the contents of a bottle of Diocane yesterday and is in a dangerous condition at the Newton Hospital. The baby was alone in the room at the time.

THOUSANDS ENJOY FREE SUMMER RESORT TICKETS

Watch the Daily and Sunday American for Further Fine Offers of Money-Saving Coupons.

The thousands who are enjoying free tickets to amusement resorts given by the Boston Sunday American should watch the announcements in the American every day this week and next Sunday be prepared to clip coupons representing even greater gifts to be offered.

Thousands of extra copies of the Sunday American were bought yesterday, from which coupons were cut entitling holders to visit many amusement resorts at great saving.

A fine array of Revere Beach ball tickets will be described daily this week, and readers will find them in next Sunday's American, to be used on the week days following. These will enable most to save half or more while enjoying the best attractions to be found anywhere.

New Lexington Park Offer.

Admission to Vanity Fair in East Providence will also be given in coupon form as in the past two weeks.

Arrangements are being made, too, with Lexington Park to entertain American coupon holders, and readers are invited to watch these columns for announcements soon to be made by Manager Benson of that resort.

Mr. Benson is the renowned animal tamer, the only man to stand in the terrible Lion Salon. He has stocked menageries in Lexington and Normandy parks, at Havana, Cuba, and he carries thirty-five years' scars on his teeth and claws of infuriated animals.

A new set of Canobie Lake Park attractions will be presented in the daily American this week, and another coupon admitting American readers to twenty-five cents worth of amusement at this famous resort over the New Hampshire line will be published next Sunday.

During this week thousands will avail themselves of the Sunday American's gift and take their families to-day or Friday to enjoy themselves in the pleasant groves of this picturesque place. They will find Canobie Lake Park, with its water and woods, buildings, drives and fun producing gums, most interesting and beautiful. Arrange to get the Boston American next Sunday and be surprised at the wonderful gift of free tickets.

The American has made arrangement with the White City of Worcester, and will publish a coupon next Sunday giving readers free admission on three days of the week, equivalent to thirty cents. Watch the American all this week for announcements of conditions.

The White City, situated on the shore of the historic Lake Quinsigmond, one mile from Worcester, rises on the eastern hillside like a chain of marble palaces; its towers, plazas, minarets, high edifices and walls loom up between the placid waters and the stately groves behind like a picture from a fairy book. Within its walls are found most diversified Summer amusements.

Admission entitles visitors to free access to the $50,000 theatre completed this week, and to a number of open-air attractions. Here is a partial list of the features presented by Manager William E. White:

A $30,000 theatre presenting the best talent obtainable; the wonderful Scenic Railway, the thrilling Airships, the Carnival Chutes, the Foolish House, Wonderland, Love's journey, a fine dance hall, the Old Mill, Alvo, Miniature Railway, Merry-Go-Round, Asia, Pharaoh's Daughter; Caliphs & Calypso, the esoteric marvels, who divine your thoughts; Electric Theatre, the World in Motion, and others.

Ride Through Grottos.

Manager White has engaged for the season the famous Bands Napoli that made Rhode Island parks famous in other years.

The Boston Sunday American coupon will admit you to the White City and give you free access to the Old Mill and Scenic Railway, a saving of thirty cents.

The Old Mill, conducted by Pike Bros., is one of the greatest, for length of ride and novel views, extant. It takes you through dark passages and lighted galleries. The journey through which the boats noiselessly glide is a wonderful dissolving.

The Scenic Railway is one of the swiftest and most bewildering rides of its kind built.

Read the daily American through the week for a fuller account of the wonders of the White City, and do not fail to obtain copies of the Sunday American containing free coupons for this bounty spot.

'SIMPLE LIFE' WEDDING FOR MARION FISH

Rich New York Society Belle Bars Bridesmaids and Flower Girls at Her Nuptials.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The greatest simplicity, approaching severity, will mark the wedding of Miss Marion Fish, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, the season's richest and most reported bride, who on Wednesday will become the wife of Albert Zabriskie Gray.

The ceremony will be performed at St. Bartholomew's Church. There will be no bridesmaids and no flower girls. The edifice will be scantily decorated and there will be no show of pomp or pageantry. The details of the wedding have been arranged by the bride-elect herself and she has promptly given the negative to every suggestion that would tend to make the wedding one of display or show. In fact, the only mutal feature of the ceremony will be the presence of guests who will represent the most exclusive society of America and Europe.

After the marriage a buffet luncheon will be served at the Fish residence, to which a small number of friends have been invited.

Miss Fish will have no bridesmaids or flower girls, nor will any ushers walk up the aisle with her. The ushers will take their seats in the forward part of the church but before the ceremony begins. The bride will be alone, save for one attendant, her cousin, Miss Janet Fish, who will be the maid of honor.

The wedding dress is to be of cream duchesse satin, cut in long, simple lines, and no trains. Flounces of rose point lace compose the trimming. The gown is high necked, with a transparent yoke of net embroidered of the regnitition tulle veil Miss Fish will wear a bridal veil of rose point.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish emphatically denies the story given circulation some weeks ago to the effect that her daughters trousseau would cost $250,000, and that the bridal robe would represent an expenditure of $50,000. The wishes of the bride-elect have been the guests in the matter of invitations as possible have been observed. The trousseau is American made, and there has been no attempt at extravagant expenditure.

CAPTURE 16 AS GAMESTERS IN CHINESE RAID

Sergeant John Guard of Lagrange street police station, who was recently transferred to that station and given "Chinatown" as his particular field, has sixteen Orientals in the municipal court to-day, together with an opium layout and gambling implements as evidence. Some of the Celestials were arraigned yesterday morning and a second one early to-day.

Yesterday morning the sergeant and a squad of patrolmen raided the premises at No. 28½ Harrison avenue, breaking in three doors that guarded the approach to a basement room. When the police came in the lights went out. Groping around in the dark, the officers arrested Hong Chinaman, who were arrested on a charge of being present where gaming implements were found. The latter consisted of policy sheets, slips and other material.

To-day the sergeant took another squad and paid an early call at No. 7 Oliver place, in search of an opium "joint." They found one Chinaman, Hop Lee by name, and an opium layout consisting of five pipes, twenty-one bige balls, three "grills," three lamps and three "hop dais" or tables. Hop Lee was arrested on charge of being present where opium and opium imple ments were found.

TWO PERISH IN HOTEL FIRE; LOSS $185,000

NORFOLK, Va., June 10.—Fire in the crowded Princess Anne Hotel at Virginia Beach early to-day resulted in the total destruction of the big hostelry at a loss of $185,000 and the death of two visitors, a maid and a porter, both colored. All of the guests escaped, some of them after harrowing experiences, and all with a loss of their personal effects.

The flames were discovered shortly after 4 o'clock by Carl Boudreau of Norfolk, who unable to find any fire extinguishers, rushed through the halls and gave the alarm. Many of the guests doubtless owe their lives to this prompt action.

After consuming the hotel, the flames spread to the electric generating station and the passenger section of the Norfolk & Southern Railway, both of which were destroyed.

The Princess Anne Hotel is one of the most famous in the South, being a favorite assembling place of Virginians and the scene of many notable affairs.

ON LINER, SEE HUGE ICEBERGS

Four big icebergs, including one half a mile long, seen by the Leyland liner Winifredian, were sighted thirty miles northeast of Cape Race by the ship's officers during the forenoon watch. The report, received from Glasgow, Scotland, was confirmed.

Captain Blanchard Henry thinks the presence of these big bergs so far south may account for the continued cold weather of this section. The largest was sighted Friday morning. It resembled, the captain says, one of the floating docks, and was about half a mile long, was standed on the end of Holland Bank. The Winifredian brought in eighty saloon and 485 steerage passengers.

"Preposterous to Call Mrs. Eddy Incompetent; Charges Are Vicious"

ARTHUR BRISBANE INTERVIEWS HEAD OF CHURCH; COURT BATTLE OPENS TODAY.

Arthur Brisbane, the well-known journalist, has interviewed Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the aged leader of the Christian Science Church, at the request of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, and states that the founder of the Christian Science faith is thoroughly competent to care for herself and her business affairs. Mr. Brisbane finds that, for a wo man of her age, eighty-six years, her mental vigor and clearness of thought are unusual.

She talked to him clearly and logically and all matters of the lawsuit which has been brought to deprive her of her property are clear in her mind. He finds that she is "living under ideal conditions, and that it would be the sheerbrutality of anyone to interfere with her life as it is to-day." As one who has no interest in Christian Science whatever, he characterises the effort to deprive Mrs. Eddy of her freedom of action in her old age as either stupid or vicious.

Mr. Brisbane passed an hour at the home of Mrs. Eddy. Mr. Brisbane's immediate report to the publication he represented upon the results of his visit to the home of Mrs. Eddy was as follows:

"I visited Mrs. Eddy as the representative of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, in accordance with the arrangement that you had made. I had a long and extremely interesting talk with her. I am glad to tell you that I shall be able to write the article which you ask for, and that it will be positively reassuring and comforting to her followers.

Mr. Brisbane describes the conditions of Mrs. Eddys home as follows:

"Those about her are devoted to her. She is in absolute control of her own movements, and nineten of her entire household. That is evident.

"Mrs. Eddy is thoroughly competent to take care of herself and her business. The suggestion that she should be deprived of her personal liberty, or of the property that she has earned, is preposterous and shameful.

Her Mental Vigor Unusual.

"For a woman of her age—she is eighty-six years old—her mental vigor and clearness of thought are most unusual. I had every opportunity of convincing myself thoroughly as to her mental and physical condition. She talks clearly, logically. She reads beautifully with a voice very musical and of great power. She understands business matters thoroughly. She speaks with intense feeling and gratitude of her friends and their devotion. To accuse those friends of conspiracy against her welfare is to my opinion disgraceful.

"I shall say at length that I feel most deeply, namely, that if Mrs. Eddy in her old age should be deprived by law of her fortune, of the right to dispose of it, or of the right to dispose of herself, the act would be outrageous. And it would have promised."

cause just apprehension in the mind of any woman past three score and ten and possessed of property that might arouse the cupidity or the interest of outsiders.

Lives Under Ideal Conditions.

"Mrs. Eddy lives under ideal conditions of comfort, quietness and contentment. It would be sheer brutality on the part of so-called 'next friends' or any others to interfere with her life as it is to-day.

"Mrs. Eddy is well able to take care of herself. She understands all the complicated details of her lawsuit, and of her very large religious following far better than the average woman of twenty-five could do.

"I questioned her in detail as to the lawsuit which seeks to deprive her of her property, and as to the deed of trust which she recently executed. Those matters are clear in her mind.

"The charges against Mrs. Eddy are false in my opinion. But if all the charges made against her mental condition were true, that very truth would constitute an additional reason for leaving her as she is, in an ideally beautiful home, surrounded by good women devoted to her, to whom her welfare is dear, by whom she has absolute confidence, and whose devotion makes her happy.

Suit Stupid or Vicious.

"The effort to deprive Mrs. Eddy in her old age of her freedom of action, control of the property which she has accumulated, is stupid or vicious, and I say this as one having no interest whatever in Christian Science.

"To interfere with Mrs. Eddy's life, to take away from her her complete liberty of action, would be a shameful outrage, and I am convinced that no court will encourage the effort. I shall write you more fully before preparing the article that I have promised."

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE, WHO SEEKS DIVORCE

DRAWS GUN ON LAWYER FREDERICK S. HALL

TRAGEDY NARROWLY AVERTED IN TAUNTON ATTORNEY'S OFFICE.

TAUNTON, June 10.—A scene of wild excitement was caused at the law office of Frederick S. Hall, former candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and one of the best-known attorneys in the State, today when James Gifford of Attleboro drew a loaded revolver and threatened to kill Mr. Hall and his brother, Charles Gifford. Charles W. Cummings of Fall River, attorney for Annie E. Gifford, mother of the young men, fought with James for possesion of the weapon, and, after a hard fight, succeeded in wresting it from him.

The Giffords were to appear in the Probate Court this morning in a suit for the removal of Annie E. and James W. Gifford, as executors of the will of James W. Gifford, late of Attleboro, father of the young men.

They gathered in Mr. Hall's office, prior to the hearing, and, suddenly, James whipped out the revolver. Charles ran from the office followed by Mr. Hall. They ran to the Central police station a block away, and in the course of a few minutes Deputy Police Chief Cahill and a half dozen patrolmen were in the office.

The weapon was turned over to Deputy Chief Cash, and James and his mother were permitted to return to Attleboro.

RICH BUILDER'S WIFE TO NAME OTHER WOMEN

Mrs. Louis G. Meyer Tells Why She Demands Divorce from Big Contractor.

NEW YORK, June 10.—In a most surprising statement to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Mrs. Louis G. Meyer began the charges contained in the suit for divorce which she has filed.

Her husband, the asphalt and paving contractor, has been hauled out of Ludlow street jail. He had been locked up Saturday on an order signed by Justice Truax in default of $10,000 bail, which was reduced to $5,000, but still Meyer was unable to get security.

His counsel, Thomas O'Callahan, finally found Arthur Conway of No. 138 West Forty-fifth street, who gave the four-story brownstone front house at that number as security for the bond.

Accompanied by Sheriff Hayes, Mr. Callahan and Albert Meyer, a brother of the prisoner, secured the bail and announced that the bail was satisfactory.

Gets Out of Jail.

Meyer came down to the office dazed and worried. As soon as the formalities were complied with Meyer departed with his brother and counsel.

Neither he nor his brother would talk about his wife's suit for divorce, which led to the order for his arrest, she fearing he was about to leave the city in company with Mrs. Kathryn Keogh Conrad Fuller Harkness.

"The principal charge," said Mrs. Meyer, "is that of his association with Mrs. Katherine Conrad Fuller Harkness, who is ill at the home of her father, Colonel Keogh, at No. 204 West Seventy-ninth street, which date from July 4, 1905.

Promises No Good.

"Specific dates and places of which I have positive proof are mentioned. I found them together in South Norwalk and in Stamford, Conn., on December 13. The next day the agreement, which seems to have been drawn up, was signed.

"It did no good, however, for they were again discovered together on the night of Buffalo and Niagara Falls, where they were photographed together.

"A month later I found them at the Hotel Belmont, and those were a sickening, digested fond. Write for the book to-day.

All grocers, pound packages.

NATIONAL STARCH COMPANY, New York.

"The climax came when Mrs. Meyer had written to her on her last, which reads in part:

"The documentary evidence incorporated in the letters and letters which I found in Mrs. Harkness's baggage on the night I arrested them Atlantic City.

Sued Once Before.

"I would give five years of my life to go back five years. I know you love me and I know that I love you. Ada, but I am crazy."

She signed this "your loving husband," and included some marks which stood for kisses, I suppose.

"The only other woman mentioned in my divorce complaint is Mrs. ALICE L. Chase, who lives in West 114th street and has a big business as Mme. Dandy on Adee Court.

"Five years ago I had divorce papers drawn up by Avery, Schlesenger & Paul, and brought a suit for alenation of affections against Mrs. Chase.

"The day before the divorce suit was brought to trial, I made an agreement with my husband. He settled a large sum of money upon me and promised to behave himself. So the suits were dropped.

"The complaint refers to a number of other women. I am not going to mention their names unless it becomes absolutely necessary.

"The complaint makes one distinct charge of brutality, but it is not necessary to go into details."

BEATS MOTHER; SHOOTS 2 MEN

SCITUATE, June 10.—Declaring his intention of killing his aged parents and his sister, Andrew Curtis, a strapping six-footer, terribly beat his mother, tearing her clothes to shreds and inflicting frightful injuries on her body and afterward shot two men who attempted to subdue him, inflicting three wounds on Fred A. Shaw and slightly wounding Walter S. Harrub, making a record all his own. Andrew Curtis was finally taken into custody after a desperate battle, during which Clarence Wheeler knocked him senseless by a blow on the top of the head.

Curtis, who is the son of Sindrach S. Curtis, an aged war veteran, living between the latter village and Greenbush, spent home last evening after indulgence in liquor, and started the trouble.

MARCEL GIRL SHOWS HOW SHE SINGED HAIR

Miss Loop, Employe of de Sousa, Testifies In Court in Dakin Case.

The true inwardness of the loose marcel wave and the common marcel wave was described at length in Judge Ely's court to-day by Alice M. Loop, who took the witness stand and admitted that it was she who had marcelled the hair of Florence Dakin, the stenographer employed by the Good Government Association, who is a plaintiff in a suit for $1,000 damages brought against Alfred De Sousa, a Winter street hairdresser, who is Miss Look's employer.

Miss Look with the kindly assistance of several curling irons and a bunch of hair, explained in detail to Judge Ely the various ways that she manipulates a woman's hair.

"My name," said she, "is Mary Look. Just plain Look.

"I am a manicurist, massagist, shampooist and marcel wavist.

Not Allowed to Wave.

"I have been such for a year. I work for Mr. De Sousa, but he always told me never to Marcel wave any customer's hair. I waved for my friends and relatives.

"I was in Mr. De Sousa's place when Miss Dakin came in last November. Miss Seavey, the lady who does the Marcel waving regularly, was absent.

"Miss Dakin was in a hurry to get waved. She was nervous.

"How do you know?" asked the lawyer for the other side.

"She talked so much," said the wavist. "Is that always a sign?"

"She said so, then," said Miss Look. "I told her the regular wavist was out. She asked me if I would wave her. I said I would. I did.

"The first iron I used was too cold. Miss Dakin's hair was too fine. I used too hard a wave.

"I heated the iron, and this time I burned her hair.

Didn't Hurt Scalp.

"But I did not hurt her scalp. No, I swear I did not.

"I am awfully sory," I said to Miss Dakin when I burned her hair.

"Oh," said she, too," said Miss Seavey, the regular wavist, who had come in from luncheon.

"Neither of you is as sorry as I am," said Miss Dakin. "I own the hair, you know."

Would Treat Her Free.

"Mr. De Sousa told her to come in every week and he would treat her burned hair free."

Miss Look then armed herself with the implements of her art and calling her left hand like unto a reporter, very handsomely, of course, Miss Dakin's forehead, she explained to Judge Ely just what she had done.

Judge Ely became much interested in the demonstration.

Alfred De Sousa, the employer of the wavist, was also on the stand to-day.

POLICE HOLD TRIO TO PROBE THEIR RECORDS

Under the charge of vagrancy, Sergeant Bowley and Patrolman Reardon are today looking up the records of Otto Kreb of Trenton, N. J.; David Tuttle, calling himself a traveling man, and Frank Connor of Lewiston, Me., whom they arrested last night at No. 11 Corning street, South End. Sergeant Bowley says that the police have been hadowing the three men for some time. When the police entered the apartment of the men they declare that they found the paraphernalia usually possessed by safe breakers.

UNDERTAKER WINS SNAPSHOT FIRST PRIZE

Resident of Charlestown Claims Award, and Calls It Easiest Mony Ever.

A large gentleman came into the BOSTON AMERICAN office to-day and asked to see the Snapshot Man. He said he was for the Snap Shot prize. Now as the Snapshot group printed in yesterday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Dose he win a prize? You bet he does. He weighs 240 pounds.

But, joking aside, one of the first pictures identified to-day in yesterday's "Snapshot Ten" was Number 1, the portly man with the new straw hat. He is Charles W. Cobb, the Charlestown undertaker, whose office is at No. 99 Main street, Charlestown.

In spite of his business Mr. Cobb is a cheerful man. He admitted though he could qualify for the "Don't Worry Club." "Easiest money I ever earned," he said to Mr. Cobb, as he left the Snapshot Man. Then he stepped into the elevator and the elevator man shot him down stairs, real quick.

While receiving calls to-day and making identifications, the Snapshot Man is planning a new departure. He is going to take a trip to the suburbs for a change. He will be out in Cambridge on Tuesday, so you Cantabrigians want to watch out sharpley for the coming of the Snapshot Man and his camera.

OPEN BATTLE ON BIG MERGER

Fazon greeted one another warmly and shook hands cordially. Then they sought their corners. There was also considerable sparring for wind on the part of Boston and Coolidge as to indicate that the merger is by no means a welcome to the legal forces of the railroads.

NEW HAVEN SEEKING STOCK.

The Boston News Bureau, which is regarded as the official organ of the New Haven road, printed a statement to-day to the effect that the exchange of the Boston & Maine shares for those of the New Haven road "is progressing satisfactorily." By to-morrow evening, the statement went on to say, it is expected that there will have been 100,000 shares exchanged.

The New Haven company has sent a circular to all of the smaller stockholders of the Boston & Maine, asking them to give up their stock in exchange for the New Haven stock. The stock is owned by 7,631 people, distributed as follows: Massachusetts, 4,776; New Hampshire, 1,525; Maine, 649; outside interests, 679.

CANNOT FORECLOSE MORTGAGE ON MILLS

On the petition of Wallace C. Taylor of Boston, one of the creditors of Fowle's Arlington Mills, Judge Dodge of the United States District Court, to-day, issued an order restraining the International Trust Company of Boston for two weeks from foreclosing an $8,500 mortgage on the mill property. Taylor petitioned to protect his interests as one of the creditors.

DEATH THREAT TO MAKE ADAMS DOOM HAYWOOD

guard of three heavily armed men to be placed on the stand as a witness for the State.

Adams probably will be first called after the cross-examination of Orchard, which is expected to end to-morrow. There is great speculation as to the attitude Adams will take when called to testify. He will not a confession some time ago admitting many of the things to which Orchard has testified, but when confronted by the gallows later he repudiated this confession. It is not known whether he will stick to his last statements and deny the confession, or return to his original position and testify for the State.

Darrow and Richardson, Haywood's counsel, are also Adams' lawyers, and they defended him in March, when he was tried in Wallace for the murder of Tyler, which Orchard told about in his story a few days ago. The State has had perfect assurance from Adams that he will never turn State's evidence, and Mrs. Adams, who recently saw her husband in the Wallace jail, says he will not incriminate Orchard. It points out that the State, if it calls Adams to the witness stand, will be bound by his answers, and if he denies Orchard's assertions it will be the defense a good term and help to destroy the testimony of the prosecution's chief witness. Judge Wood is not placing any light on the extent to which the State may go in introducing evidence. Extraordinary precautions are being taken to insure Adams' safety while he is manacled and in the custody of three men who have repeatedly been threatened with death by other of the spectacular settings of the case.

Orchard Cross-Examined.

The cross-examination of Orchard to-day was directed with a view to proving through the witness that in reality he was but the employ of the mine owners as a detective who he committed his murders and that he was the agent of the Western Federation of Miners. This indicated the line the defense would take in addition to proving by perjury false the many things to which Orchard has testified. Many letters of witnesses, named by Orchard in his testimony, have been subpoenaed by the defense and will be put on the stand to contradict Orchard.

Mrs. Orchard to Testify.

There arrived in Boise to-day Mrs. Ida Toney Orchard, a widow with three children, whom Orchard took to be his wife, notwithstanding the existence of another wife living in Canada, and known there under Orchard's true name, Horsley. Mrs. Toney will testify, it is said, that Orchard, while he lived at Cripple Creek, was in the employ of the mine owners. It is expected by the defense that she will be able to throw light on the motives of Orchard, and she will be relied on to strengthen the assertion of the defense that the mine owners and not the Western Federation of Miners were the conspirators who employed Orchard to murder.

Calls Orchard Falsifier.

"Harry Orchard is a liar. He's the biggest liar that ever saw Pike's Peak. He lies when he says, as he did at the Haywood trial in Boise, that he tried to kill me here in Denver. At that time I was in El Paso."

This statement, made to-day by former Adjutant-General Sherman Bell, in a dispatch from Denver, and coming, as it did, from one of the people most bitterly opposed to the Western Federation of Miners, was considered not only as discountenancing that part of Orchard's confession in question, but also in effect, as striking a blow at the truth of everything he told under oath.

"Orchard is a liar when he says that he was in Denver looking for me and trying to get me in July and August, 1905," continued General Bell in his statement. "Why didn't he do the business when he had the chance at me in the lobby of the Hotel Belmont, at 16th street and Champa? Where there they went to Atlantic City.

Letters in the Case.

In includes a letter which she had writ ten to her father, but had not yet mailed. It read:

"Dear Papa:

"Come over at once to room No. 337, Hotel Knickerbocker. I think I am dead ill and die. Your loving daughter, MRS. LOUIS G. MEYER."

Then there is a telephone slip which she wrote out in her own hand, asking her father, Mr. Keogh, to come to her at once. She signed my name to this.

The letter which Mrs. Meyer had written to her on her last, which reads in part:

"The documentary evidence incorporated in the letters and letters which I found in Mrs. Harkness's baggage on the night I arrested them Atlantic City.

"NAVY GUARANTEE OF NATION'S SAFETY"

pensation for accidents to all workmen within the scope of the Federal power, including employe in navy yards and arsenals. Similar legislation should follow in the States. The old and inadequate remedy of suit for negligence would then gradually disappear.

Scores Railroads.

What we advocate is only a simple measure of justice, only one more step toward securing, so far as human wisdom can secure, fair and equitable treatment for each and every one of our people.

As a corollary to the above let me point out the extreme unwisdom of the railway companies in fighting the constitutionality of the national employers' liability law. No law is more emphatically needed, and it must be kept on the statute books in drastic and thoroughgoing form.

The railroads are prompt to demand the interference and to claim the protection of the Federal courts in times of riot and disorder; and in turn the Federal Government should see to it that they are not permitted successfully to plead that they are under the Federal law when thereby their own rights can be protected, but outside of it when it is invoked against them in behalf of the rights of others.

If it is proper for the Federal Courts to issue injunctions in behalf of railroads, it is proper that railroads should be held to a strict liability for accidents occurring to their employes.

Praises the Navy.

In closing, friends and fellow-citizens of Georgia, let me say one word suggested by the recent ceremonies, in which you have just taken part, in connection with your gift to the noble battleship named after your State.

The Navy is our surest guaranty for peace; and if war should ever come it will be the greatest safeguard for our honor and our interest. Every encouragement should be given to our navy, and no public servant would be pardoned for failing to do everything in him to see that we have the best type of ships and of guns, and that the officers and enlisted men are held to the strictest accountability for any unsoldierlike with the ships and guns that no navy affords shall exist for ship, squadron or squadron, be our superior.

The Lesson of Preparedness.

Modern wars are in reality decided long before they are fought. I earnestly hope that we shall never have another war; but if we do, the result will have been determined in advance; for its outcome will mainly depend upon the preparation which has been made to meet it in time of peace.

This lesson of preparedness does not relate merely to war; it is just as true in our ordinary civic affairs. It is as true of the nation as of the individual. The nation, which is but the aggregate of the individuals composing it, will rise or fall to rise in any great crisis according to the ideals and standards that it has kept in mind in ordinary days, and according to the way in which it has previously trained itself to realize these ideals and come up to these standards.

Are You Puzzled in Selecting Gifts for the Brides of June?

By Beulah Dickinson

"WHAT on earth can I get her for a wedding present!"

Just now this is as vital a question with women as the regular spring house cleaning and the new spring suit.

Of course all her boarding school friends and old-time girl friends always choose June as the prettiest month for weddings, and that makes the dilemma of the choice of several suitable gifts.

Gradually friends of the bride and groom are getting away from the conventional cut glass and silver presents. Probably a long standing, friends tried and true, are now sending more personal wedding presents. Sometimes it is a pair of pictures such as Taylor's "Hanging of the Crane" and the companion picture. Or it may be a pair of Burne-Jones. A solid silver or gold tiny picture frame is given.

One of the most pleasing wedding presents is the gift shop this year is a pair of dull Pompeian brass candlesticks. On the base the monogram of the bride's maiden name is engraved.

New and Novel Gifts

THERE are many entirely new things this year that make appropriate wedding presents, and can be bought from $3 to $200 or more.

The pierced silver sandwich plate, with silver tongs is new. In solid silver it costs eighteen dollars and more, but it can be bought in quadruple plate for a third of that price. Platters are a new novelty. They are round stands on which chocolate, coffee or tea pots may be placed. Over a disc of glass hand engraved silver is deposited, making an ornamental and useful article.

Yo old-fashioned Brown Betty ware of colonial fame has been revived. They call it now the Rookwood pottery and over the pretty glazed brown surface silver flowers and boude are placed. A small tea set of this ware makes a beautiful wedding gift. The blue Cobalt pottery is pretty and dainty also.

Some people are buying the new bear dishes this year for wedding presents. They vary in size, are made of dark brown pottery about the color of baked beans and are decorated on the cover with bands of hand beaten copper.

And there are people who rave over the hand-beaten brass and kettles that are made in Russia. A small rose jar can be bought for $3 in this ware, and then, of course, if you want to spend your money there are huge iron pots that cost $50.

Satsuma Vases Popular

IF a woman knows that the bride-elect is partial to things Japanese, she can get any number of presents that would surely please. A Japanese bronze incense burner is artistic and useful. Satsuma vases are beautiful. There are dozens of beautifully artistic Japanese oddities in any gift shop. A bronze fern dish, an ivory statuette, or a Japanese gong is appropriate.

It is not ordinary to give jewelry as a wedding gift, although it is done to a small extent now by the "very near" friends of the bride.

How to Manage a Husband

By Dorothy Dix

THERE is no disputing that the door-mat method of managing a husband is a most effective one, and it is peculiarly rich in results when applied to a small man with a large bump of self-conceit and a highly developed love of bossing.

There is really no other man quite so easy to manage as a gentleman afflicted with what the alienists call an exaggerated ego, because as long as a woman is willing to stand by and feed him on sugar-coated pellets of flattery she has him so completely doped that she can handle him like a baby.

Aside from those cases of abnormal vanity, however, practically every man is possessed of a mania to be the boss of the house, and this is a weakness on which every married woman can always play to her own advantage. Men like to be consulted about things that are none of their business, referred to on purely feminine matters that they are incapable of forming a judgment upon. She is a sensible woman who asks her husband's advice on every subject, whether she takes it or not.

Just on general principles, great is the profit of the woman who kowtows before her lord and master, for after her salaaming at his feet is done, she can get up and do as she pleases.

DOROTHY DIX.

Great Is Her Profit

Just on general principles, great is the profit of the woman who kowtows before her lord and master, for after her salaaming at his feet is done, she can get up and do as she pleases. Men don't really care particularly about the little every-day affairs of their wives. They simply want to have their authority recognized by being asked for permission to join the Ibsen Club, or go to the prayer meeting.

This is where the door-mat wife makes her innings. She has made up her mind, for instance, that she will have the parlor done over in pink, and her husband as reported gown, but she does not go and do those things right off of her own bat, and thereby throw upon her head either a flat refusal, or a lecture on economy.

On the contrary, her first move is to humbly suggest that the parlor needs new paper, but to insist that she would never take the responsibility of picking it out herself. Hubby grumbles about having his valuable time taken up with such trivial affairs, but he is secretly tickled to death over the confidence that is shown him. So next day the depressing and dutiful little wife goes down town and brings up the sample of paper that she has already chosen, and hubby puts his signet O. K. on it and says the parlor is pink like she had intimated to save it from the first.

It's the same way about clothes. When a wise woman means to be really extravagant she always dresses her husband into going shopping with her so that she may have his infallible judgment on feminine fashion. She knows that between being flattered out of his senses by having his taste appealed to, and his fear of the awe-inspiring shop girl that he'll pay twice as much as she could dare to. There are no women so expensively dressed as those who tell you that their husbands always pick out their clothes.

Then again is where the door-mat policy scores heavily. A man simply has to be tickled with a woman who throws herself on his generosity. Besides there is no incentive toward economy. The wife that is who goes into ecstasies of gratitude and appreciation over everything that her husband brings home to her and who marvels openly and audibly at how kind he is, and how he has spasms of wonder over the artistic selection he always makes.

A Noble Side to Policy

The door-mat policy of managing a man has also a nobler side. It is the policy of non-resistance, the turning of the other cheek. It is the strength of the weak and it makes a very real appeal to a man's generosity, but a coward evokes from one who does not hit back. Nobody but a brute tramples on one who is down, and those the meekness of the woman who demands nothing for herself, often gains everything for her.

There is apparently no helpless that she is taken care of like an infant, and her self-appointed guardian is usually a very doubtful one if his own affairs are simply an open book, for if any one of the new fangled ways really work as well.

How the Rich Live; Small Fortunes Go in Horses and Motors

By Cleveland Moffett

NO. III.

HORSES, flowers, fetes, dresses—we have scarcely begun the list of opportunities that New-York affords for extravagance and show. Think of the horses, the automobiles, the guests! Think of the train of servants! And the children! And the folly! The gambling! The scandals! Ah, it's a long list!

Take the horses, for instance. You see them every morning on the avenue, every afternoon on the drive—beautiful, glossy creatures, proudly stepping, flashing in silver harness, with victorias, broughams, gigs, phaetons, soldiers, carts, calashes and landaus—these are the daily pageant procession, while the ladies and briskly and the men on the box sit aloft in impressive liveries.

Luxurious Equipages

Here comes a smart road wagon with a pair of grays. They draw up at the Casino, near a vice-regal sailing, with a pair of magnificent blacks. Down spring the footmen and assist a lady and a pale-faced man to change from the road wagon to the victoria. The liveries along the owl fence stare with fresh owned interest, for know that little pale-faced man his one of the greatest fortunes in the world. He is Alfred Vanderbilt, who has just driven in from his country place, some miles out of Newport, where he has a famous stud farm, with seventy or eighty horses. The victoria and pair come from his Newport stables, where he keeps a dozen other horses, with six men and the necessary traps for just such relay work as this. There might be a little dust on the horses' panels, so a fresh carriage and pair are necessary.

It may be added that Mr. Vanderbilt has another stable in the Adirondacks, with other horses and other men in readiness for his visits there in September. Altogether, he owns at least a hundred horses, and it would be like to estimate their value.

Smart Auto Stables

Nor is his the only important stable in Newport. There is at least one other, O. H. P. Belmont's, more perfect in its appointments, a marvel of luxury, with such carriages, road horses, harness, liveries and general elaborateness as cannot be equaled in this country, perhaps in the world. Here the stable forms the ground floor of the owner's villa, and is so wide and long that a coach and four horses can drive in and turn and drive out again. The walls are covered with rare old prints and bits with fine, first prizes, souvenirs of triumphs at the Horse Show. And there is an ingenious arrangement of sliding doors by which, when the master or mistress drives up, the doors disappear as by magic at one side, the carriage at another, while on the third side is the entrance to the private apartments, with their luxurious appointments for the use of attendance.

Passing from carriages to automobiles it is worthy of note that the increasing vogue of self-propelling vehicles has not made the rich and fashionable give up their horses, as once seemed likely but has simply increased their expenses by the cost of this new luxury. They have kept their horses and purchased automobiles besides. And a little investigation shows that the equipment and maintenance of a very comfortable stable in Newport is no slight affair.

An Expensive Pastime

What is a smart automobile stable and what does it cost? Here we find wide variations, for some families have only one or two automobiles, while some have eight or nine, and John Jacob Astor has had as many as seventeen at a time. Then, too, not two automobiles, while some have eight or nine, and John Jacob Astor has had as many as seventeen at a time. Then, too, not two automobiles are alike in cost. But four automobiles is considered a satisfactory number for ordinary millionaire needs—a gasoline brougham for runs into the country, an electric victoria for the avenue, a little runabout for errands and an imported racing car, the total cost being $230,000. Then, to operate and care for these four machines two chauffeurs and a helper are required, and, with their wages and garage charges and the outlay for gasoline, repairs, etc., the running expenses, I am assured by an expert, reach $7000 a month. Add to this the cost of shipping these automobiles from point to point—from Newport to Lenox, Palm Beach to Bar Harbor, Long Beach—and it becomes clear that this exhilarating pastime is not precisely inexpensive.

Be Patient; Keep Your Troubles to Yourself

"NEVER trouble trouble till trouble troubles you," is a very neat and very true proverb. How many of us almost court unhappiness by meeting it half way, more, a large number of us positively welcome it because it gives us a grievance, and we like to feel like martyrs.

There is a sort of feeling of glorious heroism in suffering "untold mental anguish" that tugs at the heartstrings and makes all the world look black—especially when we take a friend into our confidence and he or she condoles with us.

But we must all learn to keep our troubles to ourselves and not tell them to all and sundry. True heroism lies in patiently bearing our worries and anxieties in solitude. Bury your troubles in the depths of your own heart.

Things thus securely covered are often cured without a scar, but when they are once published and confided to meddling friends there is no end to the trouble they may cause.

If your feelings are injured, don't brood over your poor, wounded self. Rather pray for that poor, misguided sister who slighted you—perhaps she may have done so quite unwittingly. Perhaps some of us have husbands, brothers and sisters who are very unkind, who wound us cruelly by bitter words, angry retorts and much selfishness.

If this sad state of things exists we must learn to ourselves, even if it is only for the sake of those who offend us, for by taking any one into our confidence we must necessarily prejudice our friends to the shortcomings of our fellows. To do this is adverse to all laws of friendship, and if we must be charitable, we must patiently bear with those who cause us slights or pain. We must not let their faults be softened and that they may be brought to see with a clear, true vision the misery they bring to others by their unruly tongues.

Rest assured that those who utter bitter words and wicked criticisms have moments of regret and remorse and pangs of conscience. Were the truth known they actually suffer far more than the recipients of their nasty and illtongued attacks.

After all, troubles are transient things. After all, troubles are transient things. Even when they are all passed and sorrow is outside the door what a comfort it is to say:

"No one ever knew until it was over with us."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

BREAK THE ENGAGEMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I thought I would write and ask you for your advice as to what I should do about this matter that I am going to call your attention to. The young man in question is twenty-two and I am twenty. I have been keeping steady company with him for three years. He is very respectable, conscientious and with no bad habits. Just recently he has asked to break off on account of his heritage. Both being so young, would you advise me to agree to his request. I know it would be much easier to break off now than later on. Your advice would certainly be appreciated.

M. A.

I DON'T see what you can do except break off your engagement. I think, though, that the young man should satisfy you with some good explanation before asking you to do so.

HARD TO REVIVE DEAD LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl seventeen years of age and was going with a gentleman about two years until last January. He seemed to think a great deal of me, but I tired of him and gave him up. Now, I want to be around with another girl, I can see how much I care for him, and what a mistake I undertook to be.

I wrote to him and apologized for my actions, and received a letter in reply, saying he saw no reason why we should not be friends.

But he has not come around to the house, and I want to know if I can get him back.

F. T.

MY dear child, there is nothing I can say excepting that it is too bad you did not ever your mind in the first place.

You did not want him until you saw that some other girl did. Now he probably cares for her, and there is nothing more difficult than to revive a dead love. If I were you I would resign myself to the inevitable and give him up. He knows you are not interested in him, and if he also wishes it he will be sure to take steps to bring it about.

PALE LIPS AND COLD SORES

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Please tell me what will keep the lips red and healthy looking. At times they are very pale. Also, please tell me what is good to prevent cold sores.

JOSEPHINE.

THE best and only remedy for red lips besides rouge is good health. The pale lips and cold sores probably both come from the same cause, a disordered stomach, and the sooner you get after this the better for you. Consult a physician if the simple home remedies and Spring medicines do not correct your trouble.

Diet yourself carefully while taking your home course of medicine, and you will probably be in the pink of condition in a short time. To aid in drying up the cold sore dab it frequently with peroxide and they will not attain any great size.

The Boston American Pattern

AN ATTRACTIVE OVER-BLOUSE

No. 8316—The smart over-blouse here shown is a practical design, made of any fancy openwork in most of the season's materials. It looks attractive in white lingerie and becoming amount of fulness in front. In the back they extend to form a short, smart feature of the mode is the kimono sleeve that is cut in one piece with the body and trimming band that outlines the front edge. This trimming section may be used separately if desired, and would be charmingly pretty over a plain blouse of contrasting color or over a blouse of linen or batiste. Bands, insertion, ponge and taffeta are all suitable for reproduction. For 36-inch bust measure 2¾ yards of 27-inch material will be required.

No. 8316—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

By Elizabeth Purcell

CHAPTER XL.

The Woman Convict

THE REV. THOMAS HARDING looked around the congregation in exclamation of the woman tramp, and some moments the amazement dwelt on his features. Then it disappeared entirely, and he smiled to himself inwardly for having given any attention to the scattered words. He looked up at Sister Rachel. Her brilliant dark-brown eyes were still gravely calm, and still looked steadily upon the strange, vicious-looking woman who had just been brought into the ward.

But they did not betray the anxiety at her heart; and the unsuspicious rector only noticed, with quite an added tender sympathy, that she was thinner and even more intensely pale than she had been before her illness.

In actual fact, she was still wondering in what circumstances and in what place she had previously met this vagabond woman, whose pointed finger had declared her recognition. Fortunately for her peace of mind, she had not heard the woman's sharp and perilously decisive words; but she knew by the gestures that she denominated them that, whatever their precise purport, they had been spoken in direct reference to her-self.

Many and many a time, in passing through the same streets, she had shrunk in sudden dread of a chance recognition which would identify her with her terrible and ignominious past. But her shrinking emotions had been for nought. Time had gone so slowly and with deadly certainty, as she gazed upon the sick woman's wounded and brutalized face, the resemblance came back to her that it was the face of one with whom she had been associated in the worst humiliations of her convict career.

The Cruelty of Destiny

The discovery brought anguish and a cold, pain-driven fear, a sickening sense of the cruelty of destiny crept over her, momentarily depriving her of strength. The woman gazed at her with a look of perfectly clear. She had known her so well that the recognition had flashed a momentary sanity into the disorder of her delirious mind. Could her words to the rector have been an announcement of that knowledge?

With a curb as of iron on her own feelings she watched the rector face for some sign of awakening suspicion. But there was none. As his eyes met hers he inclined his bared, snow-white head in greeting, and passed quickly by. The moment was the same as ever. Then she saw him turn over Mr. Musson, who was also judge by her symptoms that she is in a high fever. She could not stand up when I found her."

"If so," I hope there is no infection about her," said Dr. Musson pettishly, as he turned up his coat sleeves and cautiously felt the sick woman's wrist between his finger and thumb. His diagnosis was rapid and perfunctory. It was evidently not greatly to his taste to remain for long in close contact with a patient whose outward condition was so deplorable.

A Serious Case

"Get her into bed quickly," he ordered, turning to one of the nurses, who stood near. "I will come back in the course of an hour." And to Alfred Harding, who had joined him, he added: "It is a case of typhoid, Harding. Would you mind giving your patient the necessary directions? I have a friend downstairs who will engage me for a game of golf, and I've had bitter luck to-day in hand. She's our best fever nurse, now Sister Rachel is off duty."

"Nurse Linwood is going away for her yearly holiday to-morrow," said Alfred Harding, recalling by his recollection a fact of which he had already been made aware.

Dr. Musson shrugged his shoulders, muttering something about nurses and their holidays being a nuisance. Then, without even looking at Sister Rachel, who, on her hand, he walked off in the direction indicated by the rector.

Before Dr. Harding left the hospital he again went to Sister Rachel's bedside. He noticed that she seemed more feverish than when he had last seen her.

"Who is that new patient?" she asked, when she had been brought in?" she demanded.

"She seems to be a homeless creature," he answered. "Her name is Bella Stevens, and she is a convict. She has a convict's parole that has been found in her pocket. She has typhoid fever very severe."

"Is it?" It was all that Sister Rachel said. She laid her head back on the pillow and closed her eyes.

"How do you feel?" Alfred Harding asked with concern.

"Well and strong," she answered him. "How soon do you think I can get up?"

"Not yet," he said hurriedly. "Not for three or four days."

"Would it be dangerous if I were to get up now?"

"Not exactly dangerous. But you are too weak yet."

Too weak! When so much depended on her rising and gaining a measure over the woman who had it in her power to betray her!

She set her lips tightly. She did not ask his permission to rise. Full well she knew that such permission would not be granted. But an hour after he was gone she was up and at her duties, secretly watching by the bedside of the miserable woman who was brought into the ward as the parole woman.

The afternoon passed through the ward in the evening, was astonished at sight of her. Maliciously thankful that the sick woman's most envenomed of all, he yet remonstrated with Sister Rachel against her rising so soon, and tried to induce her to go back to bed. But Sister Rachel was certain that in the absence of Nurse Linwood, there was no nurse in the hospital who was to be trusted to trust a severe case of typhoid fever. She added that she felt perfectly strong, and was restless to remain any longer in bed.

Self-Preservation

Consequently, she remained at her post, stayed there to watch over the speech, the eyes and delirious of the prisoner. At large, who knew the secret of her identity, and might at any moment divulge it to the hitherto unsuspecting world.

Before Dr. Harding left the hospital he again went to Sister Rachel's bedside. He noticed that she seemed more feverish than when he had last seen her.

A single instant only temptation came to her. Bella Stevens's terrible sentence had been for blackmailing; of course the whole of her convict career. The rector she had been as a tigress, had shown herself to be implacable, utterly merciless, cruel and cunning, with scarce a spark, it seemed, of humanity in her. Where would be the sin of letting her die? Sister Rachel recalled appalled from the horrible thought. Murder! Heavens! How utterly mean she herself had sunk for an idea so fearful as this to have flashed through her brain!

She prayed for pardon—for pity—for help. She was driven to her, and since the divine help were given her, the human nature that she might come to be a holy power for good, and become instead a dangerous power for evil. In the evening came that idea of securing her safety by a neglect that would amount to a crime and glanced coldly in her soul as she watched the written there in fire. She had heard from Hilary, who had come to the hospital as usual to see her, that there was a whisper of a quarrel between Hilary Wynn and Jack Heath with regard to a fraudulent election.

Higgs had added—little dreaming, poor fellow, how closely the news concerned her own life—that Jack Heath had himself overheard Wynn accusing young Mr. Heath of forgery. The matter was to be laid gone to Heath Hall with a note for Mrs. Heath from Mr. Nedd. He had concluded by saying, as one repeating what he had heard people say, remarking that it was only what might have been expected of his mother's son; Aubrey Heath's first wife had brought that strange taint of evil into the family to show itself in generation after generation in the person of her son.

A sharp agony filled Sister Rachel's heart. Her son accused of forgery! Was her poor $250, obtained with so much difficulty and struggle, been of no use to help him? Or was the report a false one, invented by Aubrey Wynn's unresting will? People are supposed to hate those whom they have wronged even more than they hate those who have wronged even more than they hate those who have wronged them. Might there not be a reason why Gilbert Wynn should hate the son of the man whom he still believed to be languishing in prison for his crime? That he did not hate Hilary was due, no doubt, solely to the girl's beauty. But that he should come when he would make her suffer, also.

FIVE OF YACHTS IN OCEAN RACE REACH BERMUDA

Schooner Dervish, Owned by Commodore Marsh of Marblehead, First at Finish.

ACCIDENTS TO SHAMROCK

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 10.—With the arrival to-day of the schooner Priscilla, five of the twelve yachts which started from Sandy Hook last Wednesday on the 550-mile race to David's Light are now in port here. While the other yachts have not been heard from, no anxiety is felt for them, as the exceptionally quick time made by the leaders does not indicate the shorter competitors have met with accident.

The Priscilla crossed the line at 7:37 a. m. Early as was the hour a good-sized fleet was on hand to welcome her.

Marblehead Schooner Wins.

The yawl Lili, which finished second, wins the cup in the second division. It is expected the schooner Dervish, owned by Commodore Marsh of Marblehead, which was first across the finish line, will win the Mater cup, but as she had to give a time allowance of over a day there is a chance for some other yacht to snatch the victory from her.

Yachtsmen here to-day expressed sympathy with Frederick Thompson, owner of the schooner Shamrock, when it became known that mishaps to his boat probably kept her from winning. The Shamrock was off the finish line at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon waiting for the sun to rise to give her her bearings. In the voyage three other sails had been carried away, the spreaders of her bowsprit had given way, her mainmast had sprung and her log had been carried away.

Blown 37 Miles From Course.

Unable to even approximate her position, on account of the last mishap, Captain Lindsey had to lay to. Before the sun came up the yacht was driven 37 miles south of Bermuda. Before she could beat, at 8 o'clock last night, the Dervish, Lila and Hyperion had crossed the line.

The Shamrock came in to be, nearings with two feet of water in her hold, as the pumps had also been put out of commission and a leak had been sprung.

20 SCHOONERS ARRIVE, BREAK FISH FAMINE

Among the twenty fishing schooners that arrived at T wharf to-day, breaking a partial fish famine that has existed for the past ten days, was the Rose Dorothea, whose exploits of Saturday last nearly made it the champion eleventh hour boat of the fleet.

For Saturday, after days of fishless cruising, the Rose Dorothea encountered the good fortune to catch 70,000 pounds of fish and to dress it all down within twenty-four hours.

One result of the good fortune that came at the last moment was that each of the twenty members of the crew gets $100 as his share of the work. Manuel Perry, the captain, will get more and the boat herself has a share.

The captain said to-day that the men worked so hard Saturday that after all the work was over and it was time they turned for a cup of coffee on their way to their bunks they were so sleepy that they fell asleep standing up, with the cups of steaming coffee in their hands.

QUITS CHURCH AFTER 25 YEARS AS PASTOR

A touching scene was presented in the Star of the Sea Church at East Boston yesterday when it was announced by the Rev. Father Hugh Roe O'Donnell, pastor for nearly twenty-five years, that because of throat trouble, aggravated by proximity to the salt water, he is to move inland to Allston and take charge of St. Anthony's Church there, by appointment from Archbishop Williams.

Father O'Donnell will, in all probability, be succeeded by the Rev. Mr. McDonough of the Working Boys' Home.

WELCOME HOME HUB IRISHMEN

That a hearty and royal welcome will be given the delegates who represented America at the convention in Dublin, Ireland, last month, which was called for the express purpose of passing judgment on the Birrell Home Rule Bill, and which was overwhelmingly defeated by the representatives this week when Messrs. Dr. demonstrated this week when Messrs. Dr. P. J. Timmins, John J. O'Callaghan and Thomas B. Fitzpatrick arrive at Boston Light on the Cymric. A delegation of representative Irishmen will greet them and convey the "Cead Mile Failthe" of the Boston Central Council. Dr. T. J. Dillon will head the delegation. He is president of the council.

The arrangements for the reception to be tendered the delegates include a banquet in Faneuil Hall on the night of their arrival.

ANOTHER PUCK FAIR PLANNED BY KNIGHTS

Another puck fair and athletic meet has been planned by the Knights of St. Breedan at Lemuel street grounds, July 4. It is expected the field day will surpass all previous attempts made by this organization. All the Irish County clubs were represented at the meeting yesterday.

RECEIVER FOR AIR-LINE ROAD

CHICAGO, June 10.—A receiver has been appointed for the Chicago & New York Air Line Railroad, by Judge Sanborn of the United States Circuit Court. The road is under construction and is advertised to run from Chicago to New York in ten hours with electric motive power. Dissatisfied stockholders asked for the receiver.

GUATEMALA'S RULER SLAIN

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—President Cabrera of Guatemala has been assassinated, according to a private dispatch received in this city to-day. The dispatch finds credence, although unconfirmed, in official circles, because it has been known for months the assassins were training the head of the Guatemala Government with the avowed object of taking his life, in order to simplify the problem of the consolidation of the three bigger Central American republics into one greater state.

For striking scenic grandeur, delightfully cool temperature and salubrious health-giving climate, the White Mountains of New Hampshire are unsurpassed.

High up along the several peaks of over five thousand feet in height, or nestled away in the vales are to be found scores of luxurious hotel-palaces with their world-famous cuisine, and hundreds of cosy boarding houses. Here one can enjoy abundant opportunities for golfing, driving, tramping, mountain climbing, fishing or absolute rest.

Our illustrated booklet, "The White Mountains of New Hampshire," tells all about them. Send 2-cent stamp for it today.

Dorchester Boys Call Meeting to Protest Against Alleged Broken Pledge.

FITZGERALD IS INVITED

Aroused over the failure of Mayor Fitzgerald to make good his pledge, which the boys say he gave them when he was a candidate for Mayor, to provide the Savin Hill district, Dorchester, with a proper playground, the boys of that neighborhood have placarded the district with calls to a meeting for the purpose of protesting, as the circular says, "against the neglect of the city officials in not providing Savin Hill with a suitable playground."

The meeting will be held in the Ward 20 assembly hall, Neponset, House Hill, Wednesday night, and besides His Honor the Mayor Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, Aldermen Bell and Clark, Senator Lowitt, Park Superintendent Pettigrew, Chairman William Bunton, of the Ward 20 Democratic Committee and the Councillmen from the district have been invited to attend.

Claim Mayor Gave Pledge.

A year ago last November, according to the boys of the district, the Mayor promised, if he was elected, to have the Savin Hill playground put in such a condition that the boys could play baseball and other games there, but up to date nothing has been done.

Last week a delegation of boys from the district called upon the Mayor at City Hall, and through Walter Fultz, the chairman of the committee, called attention to his autoelection promise and pointed out to him that, while the outfield has been put in good shape since 1906, it has never been graded, nor has a cent been spent on it for any purpose.

The "Call to Arms."

The Mayor was invited to purge out and explain his attitude at Wednesday night's meeting, but was obliged to decline, owing to the fact that he would be in Chicago at that time.

He will send Secretary Dolan.

The "call to arms" with which prospective attendants at the Wednesday evening June 12, at washroom, Meeting House Hill, is placarded reads: "The neglect of city officials in not providing Savin Hill with a suitable playground. Bring your friends. We want a decent playground. Help us!

James Cronin, Timothy Calnan, James Clifford, committee.

Walter Fultz, chairman.

BOILS TO DEATH IN BATH TUB

HAVERHILL, June 10.—Lying in a bath-tub full of boiling water at his lodging house on Merrimack street, Albert Clayton Jenkins, a popular young man of this city, was found literally cooked to death yesterday. The windows were shut tightly and the room was devoid of any oxygen.

Gas is used to heat the water there, and the police, who broke in the door, and discovered the body, believe that by the time the young man was ready for his bath the air was so vitiated that when he stepped into the tub he fainted. He was twenty-five years old. He leaves a father.

DINE EXCISE COMMISSIONER

So many of Fred A. Emery's friends as can jam into the Quincy House will get together to-morrow evening at a complimentary banquet. Whether the banqueters are going to celebrate the fact that Mr. Emery has been a member of the Excise Board for a whole year without his name appearing more than once or twice in the public prints, or whether the celebration is because Mr. Emery's birthday anniversary comes in November, whatever the reason, a regiment of Fred Emery's friends are going to crowd Fred Emery into a chair in the Quincy's banquet hall tomorrow night to listen while they tell him and each other how much they think of him.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

The kidneys are essential organs for keeping the body free from impurities. If they should fail to work death would ensue in very short time.

Inflammation or irritation caused by some feminine derangement may spread to some extent to the Kidneys and affect them. The cause can be so far removed by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that the trouble will disappear.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, swelling of the limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It may be the means of saving her life. Read what this medicine did for Kate A. Hearn, 520 West 47th Street, New York, who writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I owe a debt of gratitude to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it has saved my life. I suffered with Kidney trouble, irregularities and painful periods, and my blood was fast turning to water. I used your medicine for some time and it has made me strong and well."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs cures Female Complaints, such as Falling and Displacements, and Organic Diseases. Dissolves and expels Tumors at an early stage. It strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility and invigorates the whole system. For derangement of the Kidneys in either sex Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especial.

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Jim McGuire, the new manager of the Boston Americans, had a long talk with President Taylor to-day in the club's offices in the Old South building, and they went over the entire baseball situation.

Mr. Taylor made it plain to the reporters that the new manager has entire charge of the team, with power to fire and hire. "McGuire takes charge of affairs to-day," said the president, "and," he smilingly added, "he has the best chance in the world to make a showing for the club is in last place."

The new manager will wear a uniform and direct affairs from the bench and coaching lines. He doesn't expect to set the world on fire from the start off, and President Taylor does not expect him to do so either.

Big Bill Settles Up.

Big Bill Dinneen also called at the club offices to-day. He dropped in to settle up with Treasurer McBreen and will remain in Boston to await the arrival of the St. Louis Browns on Thursday.

"I'm sorry to leave Boston," said Bill, "but it's part of the baseball game. I'll do the best I can for McAleer.

"I believe McGuire will make good as manager. He is cool and never loses his head. I played under him when he was manager of the Washington team temporarily for a short time."

Secretary Bernard of the Cleveland club called at headquarters. "Boston is certainly the banner baseball town," he said. "Saturday's crowd was the largest the Cleveland club has played to on the road this year." He had a good word for the new Boston manager, and predicted that McGuire would make a hit here.

McGuire is ticked to be succeeding from his remarks on what he thinks of the fans who support the team.

"Boston," said Mr. McGuire, "is undoubtedly the best baseball city in the country. The patrons of the game here are enthusiastic and understand the fine points of the sport better than those of any other place that I know of.

"The owners of the club are liberal and are willing to spend any amount of money to get a winning team, and with such a disposition there does not seem to be any reason why they should not be able to get one.

"I shall give the best that is in me to work out this end."

Should Do Better.

With McGuire on the bench directing things from a safe distance and that flashy third baseman, Johnny Kinght, doing some wonderful things in the active side of the game, and some of the pitchers imitating Cy Young successfully, the team may get out of that hole in the race.

The matter of changes in the team is evidently under way, and changes are bound to come, so long as the playing of the team is not stereotyped. This the players realize, and it depends upon theselves to settle the question.

It is generally the case that a change of base excites helps a player and also is beneficial to the team whose interests he looks after, if weather conditions allow, will come the second game Wednesday. The Naps and the Pilgrims, and Lajoie wants to count his seventh straight win, but he will have Jim McGuire working against him and the new manager knows well how to counteract any move by the Cleveland leader.

The Naps are a hard team to stop when they are going right, and things appear to be swimming along nicely for them just now.

It will be Jesse Tannehill's turn to get in the game, and the old southpaw is due to show some of his famous strokes against the Westerners.

The ball twirlers, Hess and Bernhard, will decide between them for the honor of working for another win for the Naps.

CINCINNATI, June 10.—After cleaning up the Pirates in the finest game ever played in Smoketown, the Doves swarmed into Redland and are prepared to win over grass from Hanlon's pest before they decamp.

It acted like a tonic on Red Tenney's boys to get even with the Pirates, and was particularly pleasing to the ex-Pittsburgers, who are now members of the Dorys.

After what they did to Wagner et al, the Reds are wise that they will have to play fast ball to win from Boston.

The local fans are rooting strongly for their team, as they have been jumping visiting teams lately and showing form which bodes well for the future. The Porktown fans can't remember when their team displayed such an excellent sport, but that does not affect the Hub fans, who, under Dooin's standard, are playing for a man who oversees likes and the inside workings of the pine ring smoother than ever before.

George Dorys will to-day that he was still on the lookout for any good players, and was in need of a catcher particularly. That must leave a fine trade of timber. The Reds will be the second team the Doves have met on their present western trip, and according to Manager Tenney will make a desperate showing the first time along the circuit.

PARENT LEADS THE PILGRIM BATTERS

That Freddie Parent is playing his real game the figure tell. He has jumped up at the top of the Pilgrims in the batting department of the team, and still going. He is the only real one who has played regularly all the season, of the team who can claim a mark over .300.

On paper young Knight stands at the head of the team for playing one game, and if he continues to play he will make it interesting for Parent. Jimmy Calling left the race in second standing in the hitting line and shows where his real strength was.

Barrett has fallen the heaviest in batting figures and dropped nearly fifty points, and Captain Unglaub has had a change for the worse. Conalton and Shaw have come up a few points, but are yet far from making a respectable showing.

BEAUMONT IS BEST BATTER ON NATIONALS

The past week has been productive of a slump on the part of the leaders in their general batting work and as a result of the opening of the first Western trip several changes has been made in the batting averages.

Beaumont, the star slugger of the Doves, fell off several points and there is not a man over .300 in the National for a pitcher, has done pretty good work with the willow.

Johnny Bates still clings to Beaumont and will continue hitting the ball, as he has a natural aptitude for banging the horsehide.

The climbing of Claude Hitchey was a pleasing feature of the week and shows that the ex-Pirate is coming to.

BAY STATE A. A. TO HAVE BIG OUTING ON SATURDAY

By J. C. Kerrison.

With favorable weather, the members of the Bay State Athletic Association should be out Saturday, Sunday and Monday enjoy one of the big outings in the history of the club. In selecting the Colonial Inn for the grand rendezvous, the committee has certainly hit the mind its easy access and the distance from Boston, it is easy to see that if nothing is done to spoil the fun it will be one of the biggest outings ever held by the Bay State athletes. The Colonial Inn is situated on the shore of Lake Quinsigamond, about two miles from Worcester, and is one of the most popular resorts in that section of the state. It is easily reached by the trains of the Boston & Albany railroad, and by the electric cars of the Worcester, Marlboro & Northboro street railway. The Colonial Inn is also reached by the Boston & Worcester electric cars, which run direct to the door. The Bay State Athletic Association has secured the entire hotel for the occasion, and will have the exclusive use of the grounds and buildings. The grounds are beautifully situated on the shore of the lake, and are admirably adapted for the purpose. The lake is dotted with numerous islands, and the scenery is very picturesque. Boating, bathing and fishing will be among the attractions, and the association has secured the use of a number of boats for the occasion. The lake is also stocked with fish, and the fishing is said to be excellent. Bathing suits will be furnished by the management, and the bathing beach is one of the finest on the lake. Baseball, tennis, quoits and other outdoor sports will be indulged in, and the association has secured the use of a number of bicycles for the occasion. The lake is also stocked with fish, and the fishing is said to be excellent. Bathing suits will be furnished by the management, and the bathing beach is one of the finest on the lake. showers, which came down with great frequency.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Bay State Athletic Association will be held at the clubhouse tomorrow noon. The report of the race committee will also be made public. It is understood that the committee netted a handsome gain from the meet.

BIG MEET AT LYNN.

The city of Lynn will hold an athletic meet in connection with the Independence Day celebration on July 4. The following are the handicap events, open to all amateurs: 100 yards, 880 yards, 1,000 yards, one mile and two-mile runs, high jump, broad jump, putting the shot, and open team race. Bronze statuary pieces will be given in each event for first and second prizes. Entries will close on July 1, with Hugh McGrath, Charlestown, chairman. There will be no entrance fee.

Fight Promoters Must Make an Effort

TO PURIFY RING SPORT

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—Since the confession of Jack O'Brien made it evident that there is more crookedness in the boxing game than is dreamt of in the average critic's philosophy, many plans have been suggested looking to the purification of the sport of the glove. From the number of marked papers and personal letters I have received I can plainly see that the necessity of formulating plans for safeguarding pugilism secured to many scribes about the same time. More than one critic of my acquaintance framed fake-proof rules and waxed proud in the conviction that if his ideas are adopted there will be nothing for wrongdoers to confess in future.

One young man has suggested the placing of large forfeits by everybody connected with a boxing bout, from the promoter clear through to the referee, and the handing out of something in the nature of rain checks to ticket purchasers. This latter so that if a fight should turn out bad the patrons will have the privilege of attending the next one free of charge.

Favor Ten-Round Bouts.

The same young man, and he has evidently taking pains, in preparing his rules, thinks that every contest should be scheduled for ten rounds, with the understanding that the referee is empowered to order additional rounds if no winner appears before the tenth round is completed. By this course he thinks the fighters would be kept as alert as a couple of pigeon players shooting a freeguest, and that each man would feel that to miss with round barrels in an added round would mean defeat.

Many other schemes have been submitted to me, most of them having something to commend them, and in addition I have been asked to say what my own views are in regard to a general movement toward the betterment of ring sport. I can only repeat what I have said at different times during the past twenty years, to wit: That the best way to insure honest sport and protection to the public is to have boxing controlled and officered just as baseball is.

I am free to confess that the difficulties in bringing about such a condition are almost insurmountable at present. Boxing is countenanced in some places and forbidden in others, and it is too much to expect that a governing body in Chicago, say, would give time and thought to the control of a sport that is active only on the Pacific Coast.

Until boxing is removed of all stigma and is permitted throughout the United States, the best way, in my opinion, would be for properly organized clubs to take the helm at different points and deal with local conditions as they exist. To properly organized clubs I mean clubs like the old California Athletic Club, not concerns headed by individual promoters who are backed up by dummy board of directors. Such clubs could control the six-round game of Philadelphia, the twenty-round industry of California or the finish fights of Nevada.

These clubs, like the old Californian, again should be officered by gentlemen who have an interest in pugilism simply grows out of their partiality for the sport and who have no desire to profit financially by the work of the ring men.

Good Referees Needed.

There should be club referees, several of them, just as there are league umpires, and it goes without saying, almost, that these judges of things fistic would know that their tenure of office, their salaries and their good standing with the public would demand upon their discernment and fairness in all things they were asked to pass upon.

A fighter should never have any voice in the selection of the referee and the referee's word should be absolute in everything. He should be empowered to cancel bets, stop contests, to order purses withheld and to exercise unlimited discretion in everything pertaining to bouts. This seems a lot of power to place in one man's hands, but under the system I am advocating there would be little fear of any block sheep creeping into the referee fold.

To make this scheme effective the authorities in the various sections where boxing is permitted would have to concede the local club complete control of the sport. The object of the clubs should be to foster public exhibitions of boxing, to insure square sport and to withhold from the referee no more than was necessary to pay salaries and meet expenses.

TIME FOR REFORM IN HARNESS RACES

"With the antique methods prevailing today in the conduct of light harness horse-race meetings it is not only time radical changes were adopted by managers and secretaries of tracks, but in the methods of handling the sport as well," declares the well-known promoter of race meetings, T. H. Coleman.

"In the great majority of instances stockholders take notice that they are not receiving dividends on their investments of from $30,000 up to $100,000 in turn tracks. In order for them to do so means that in the future the sport must be made attractive enough to largely increase the gate receipts.

"Management of the tracks must equal that of any first-class theatre, with advertising like a circus, and the full cooperation of the horsemen. Grounds should be on the order of a park, with every convenience for both public and horsemen. Short scoring and no delays—every horse out to win—just as that know in the Judges' stand, and every courtesy possible extended to both horsemen and public.

"Trainers should get horses ready to race early. Mace, Dulie, Goldsmith, Splain, Turner and men of their high class began racing in May and raced every week until November.

"Now it is the custom to begin about the middle of July or August with the best horses in half over. The value of a trotter or pacer is largely determined by its earning capacity. They race them all Winter in Canada on the ice, and begin in May and race them all Summer on the dirt. What has been done and is being done by others can be done by every trainer in the land.

"With racing beginning early and on improved plans to interest the sport-loving public, the time may come when owners of horses can get free entrances to the races. In a $300 purse, after the entrance is deducted, first horse gets $200, second $75, third $25 net.

"Under the plan of free entrance in a $300 purse the winnings would be the same as in a $500 under the old way, dividing it $200 to first, $75 to second and $25 to third horse.

"It only means that the gate receipts must be increased by 333 admissions daily for the days of a meeting in order to give absolutely free entrance in $300 purses.

"The runners pay no entrance fee in purses of $900 to $900, and why should the harness horses?"

CREW WRECKED IN ICE, SAVED

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., June 10.—The French schooner Fauvette, Captain Lepage, has arrived with Captain Riebourdais and fourteen of the crew of the French fishing vessel Loraine, which was crushed between immense ice fields and foundered thirty miles off Low Point, C. B., on the morning of May 26.

The vessel went to the bottom so quickly that the captain and eighteen men had barely time to escape with their lives, losing everything except the clothes they wore. They rowed eighteen hours in a dory before being rescued.

Marry a Trained Nurse---HORRORS!

The "Respectable" English Aristocracy Have Swallowed Worse Things

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is the head of the Liberal party in England. And Sir Henry—breathe it gently and mournfully—IS GOING TO MARRY A TRAINED NURSE.

Nothing to get excited about, you say? But you don't know sensitive England—especially the sensitive little middle-class Englishman.

This coming marriage of the head of the Liberal party to a trained nurse threatens, according to newspaper reports, to disrupt the entire Liberal party. The King on his throne and the little cheesemonger behind his counter are shuddering together. The lion and the unicorn feel disgraced, and the whole of England asks, "A trained nurse—what's coming next?"

This fuss over the wedding of a respectable, well-meaning, useful old man and a respectable and admirable woman illustrates the peculiar ideas of right and wrong that grow up in falsely organized society.

When you hear about the noise that this proposed wedding causes you ought to remember the wedding of the young man who is now Prince of Wales and who will be the King of England.

This young man had already been married once—married "morganatically" they call it. He had married a young girl, in the morganatic fashion, which alone is permitted to members of the royal family when they marry outside of royal circles.

The girl whom he married was the daughter of an admiral in the British navy. The morganatic marriage with this girl was happy, and children had been born. Then it was decided that this young prince—he will be the King of England—must marry somebody else, somebody that he could marry really and NOT morganatically, in order to keep the estimable "Guelph" strain going. He was taken away from the young girl who had given her life to him, and was married to a princess of "royal blood."

Since then the cast-off, morganatic wife has died, and it doesn't take much imagination to realize the effect that the prince's second wedding must have had upon a sensitive and well-meaning young woman.

BUT ENGLAND STOOD THAT MARRIAGE ADMIRABLY. There was a little talk about it, some said that even a prince if he married a young girl morganatically ought to stick to her, and later, when he became King, fight to make her his legitimate wife. But he didn't do that. The poor girl whom he married was thrown aside and he married a second time. There was not a word said publicly about the matter when the first wife died.

And now, when an estimable old gentleman who has made himself useful in politics lets it be known that he purposes to marry a trained nurse, in spite of the fact that he is at the head of a nation's real government, ALL ENGLAND SHUDDERS WITH HORROR.

There are savage countries where the young woman puts a large, round piece of wood in her lower lip to stretch it out. Later, when she is married, the happy bridegroom knocks out all of her lower front teeth as a sign of proprietorship. He thinks, and others think, that the lower lip pulled out very far and all the lower front teeth knocked out constitute beauty. A bride with her lower teeth NOT knocked out is disgraced.

Are these savages really more foolish or queer in their taste and reasoning than the English people whom we are discussing?

Working the Bunco Game Again

The New York World says:

"Alas for the departed railway glory of the Hub! It has bartered its old prestige for a larger bank account."

The Hub has traded away its prestige, but we haven't noticed that the bank account is growing any faster than in the old days.

What has actually happened is that the Hub has bartered its old railway prestige for a cloud of glittering promises.

The same hired men, the same intimidated business interests and the same newspapers that helped the New York Central take the Boston & Albany Railroad away from Massachusetts are now helping the New Haven road take the Boston & Maine away.

Little Editorials from the People

IS THIS MUNICIPAL ECONOMY?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

A rumor was current six months ago or more that one of the schoolhouse commissions, Mr. Mullen, I believe, strongly urged at different times the selling of the Mason street property, now used only as a general headquarters by the School Board.

The proceeds would amount to $200,000 or thereabouts, its assessed value being $193,000. This would be ample to construct and furnish a building to accommodate the entire department—commission, board and minor offices.

The land for the site is ready, in a very desirable location, has been city property for some time, and lying idle, at the corner of West Newton and Dartmouth streets.

Such a straight business proposition as this should sure been acted upon at once by an administration that is either bigger, better or busier.

The department is now paying expensive rentals for the offices in private buildings, notably the suite occupied by the commissioner on the top floor of the new structure at No. 120 Boylston street.

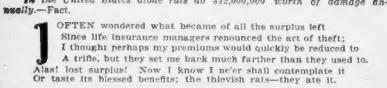
Rats

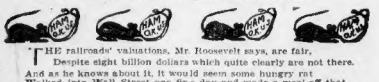
By James J. Montague

In the United States alone rats do $12,000,000 worth of damage annually.—Fact.

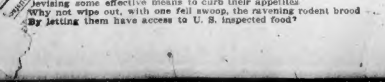
I OFTEN wondered what became of all the surplus left
Since life insurance managers renounced the art of theft;
I thought perhaps my premiums would quickly be reduced to
A trifle, but they set me back much farther than they used to.
Alas! lost surplus! Now I know I ne'er shall contemplate it
Or taste its blessed benefits; the thievish rats—they ate it.



I FEEL assured that T. C. Platt and Chauncey M. Depew
Have banded in their fare-you-wells, now six years overdue,
But still sit firmly riveted to their exalted stations,
Because these evil rodents have chewed up their resignations.
And from late indications I am quite convinced they must
Have eaten Garfield's evidence a gainst the butcher trust!



THE railroads' valuations, Mr. Roosevelt says, are fair,
Despite eight billion dollars which quite clearly are not there.
And as he knows about it, it would seem some hungry rat
Walked into Wall Street one fine day and made a meal off that.
If he had been a Roosevelt rat he might have done far better
By dropping in on Harriman, and eating up that letter.



WHEN one considers carefully the ravage rodents make
And knows that these alarming tales are no mere nature fakes,
It seems as if society had better sit up nights
Devising some effective means to curb their appetites.
Why not wipe out, with one fell swoop, the ravening rodent brood
By letting them have access to U. S. inspected food?

Up-to-Date Society Notes

By Embee Field

ALARMED by the high percentage of illiteracy in their city, several Pittsburg philanthropists are raising funds to open a night school for the sons of captains of industry.

THE popular owner of Manhattan Island, New York, has leased a couple of Western States for the hunting season.

THE Illustrated Divorce Annual just out is the best number of that periodical we have yet seen. It is bigger than ever, more full of entertaining reading matter, and many of our prominent families are represented in its pages. A seaside pocket edition has also been issued, entitled "Who's Who in Divorce and Why."

THE Pennsylvania railroad has decided to cut up Philadelphia into building lots. This ought to attract some settlers there who may take an interest in what the road is doing.

SENATOR DEPLATT expects to spend election day this year right in this country. He does not want to miss the opening of the Waldorf-Waldorf cotillion season.

THE new director of the Opera House has shown his tact by doing away with the distracting opera on society nights. He has also installed tiny footlights and a sounding board in each box.

IT is rumored that Senator Dryden is willing to part with his shares in the New Jersey Legislature.

MRS. WISEDOUGH has decided to present her husband with a home having all the comforts of a club.

AMONG the splendid charities deserving of social support are the Day Nurseries for Kittens, the Auto and Yacht Outing Fund for Terriers and the Diet Kitchens for Stray Poodles. No Summer charities are so important as the above.

THE big colleges have just issued their fall catalogues and sample books. English will still be worn on the bias. Open work in football will be all the rage. Harvard still leads our educational institutions by several hundred pounds of half-backs.

Mrs. Bottlecork At Revere Beach

By Wex Jones

"COME on, children; Ethel, you carry baby. You undutiful child, take him right away. I don't care if you do want to look at the elephants; you can look at your father when we get home.

"End of the world'—that's a funny idea. How could any one know what the end of the world would be like when it's never ended yet, although a man in Somerville says it will end next year? I don't see how he knows, but he seems to be sure of it, for they took him to Danvers because he repeated it so often.

"Harold, come here; where did you get those peanuts?

"You swiped a bag off of a stand? You're a wicked boy, and I tremble to think what you'll grow up into, and how would a child of mine look in stripes? I never could bear anything stripey anyway, since I had that jacket that fitted so bad. You just give up those peanuts this minute—no, not to the man, to me. He might want to make your mother pay for them. Just to punish you I'll eat them myself. No, you can't have a single one. What's that you say, you little imp—you don't see any good swipin' things for me! I'll remember that remark when I get you home.

"What's this 'Feast of Belshazzar,' I wonder. Some Pittsburg millionaire's supper, I suppose. Oh, its Oriental, is it? Can you see it, you ask? No, Harold, you and Ethel stay outside While I look at it. The Orient isn't respectable; at any rate, Orientals wear outlandish clothes.

"Where did those children go? Ethel! Ethel! Harold! Har-o-ld! Oh, there he is, riding on the elephant. Come down this minute, sir! No, you won't wait till the ride's finished; you'll come down right away. What? You dare me to come up and get you! Oh, you-you-you little crocodile!

"And where is that wicked girl gone with my precious Baby? Ah, there she comes. Where's Baby?

"You forgot him!

"Mercy! Where? Where? Quick, before I shake you. In the MOON? It was dark and you forgot him!

"What has become of my darling It was the trip to the Moon,—run, run; let's run there.

"Ooh, ooh, and there's precious pet, and did the big man keep 'oo? Mother's darling baby will go right home.

"Come, Ethel; come Harold. I don't care if you haven't seen anything. Home you go, and you'll both catch it when you get there. Come on and look cheerful now, you sulky things."

Beware of the man of two faces.—DUTCH.

Mr. E. Z. Mark Buys a Tiger Skin Rug

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

1.—STRANGER—Mr. Mark, I am very anxious to dispose of this tiger skin rug in a hurry. It is worth at least two hundred dollars, but I will let you have it for fifty dollars cash.

E. Z. MARK—Fifty dollars! Nonsense! I'll give you thirty and not a cent more.

STRANGER—It's a shame to let it go so cheap, but I need the money. Hand over the thirty and the rug is yours.

2.—E. Z. MARK—Who says I can't drive a bargain? That rug is the exact duplicate of the one I paid three hundred dollars for last Winter. I wonder what Mary will say when I tell her I got it for thirty. I dare say she won't believe me. She's always skeptical about my business transactions.

3.—MRS. MARK—Oh, E. Z.! Our tiger skin rug has been stolen. I hung it out on the line to air, and now it's gone. Telephone to the police at once.

E. Z. MARK—What! Stolen! You don't mean it! (Aside) Great Caesar! I've been paid the thief thirty dollars for my own rug. If Mary finds out the truth, I'll never hear the last of it.

4.—MRS. MARK—Why, there's the rug now! How did it get here?

E. Z. MARK—How do you suppose it got there? I saw the thief walking past the house carrying the rug, and I immediately rushed out and forced him to give up. There was no policeman in sight, so I did not try to give him into custody. (Aside) Whew! That was an awful lie, but I had to tell it.
